BATTLE AT SMILOVO

Other Desperate Encounters Throughout Macedonia Result in Heavy Loss of Life.

THE REVOLT IS SPREADING

[SPECIAL CABLE TO THE GAZETTE.]

Vienna, Aug. 30.—News reaches here of heavy fighting between Turkish regulars and Macedonian insurgents near Smilovo. The insurgents, numbering about 2,500 men, were entrenched in a strong position on the top of a hill near the village when they were attacked by a strong force of Turks, about 5,000 men, under Zivet Pasha. The fighting was of the most desperate character. Time and again the Turks swept up the hill, only to be driven back by the deadly hail of bullets which came from the Macedonian breastworks. The insurgents were fighting for life, for in this campaign the Turks take no prisoners. While the Turkish troops were reforming between charges the insurgent position was under a constant and deadly shrapnel fire from the Turkish batteries. After 10 hours of as fierce fighting as ever was seen the Turks succeeded in gaining a foothold within the Macedonian entrenchments when cold steel, supplemented by revolvers, superseded rifle and field gun. Overwhelmed by numbers, the Macedonians broke and the fight degenerated into a slaughter. Every Macedonian who remained on the field, it is reported, there was more than 1,000 of them, was dead. Not a prisoner, hale or wounded, was taken. The Turks kept up the pursuit of the routed Macedonians until darkness put an end to the work.

Every one overtaken was promptly slain. It is not believed that half the Macedonians succeeded in escaping. It is rumored that Boris Sarafoff himself led the Macedonians, but the report cannot be verified.

The Turkish loss was heavy for the insurgents fought desperately.

This is by all means the most desperately-fought battle of the campaign so far.

Explanation of Turks.

LONDON, Aug. 31.—The Sofia correspondent of the Times telegraphs that it is explained that the Beirut affair was merely a wedding party indulging in a feude jete and the shots were not directed with design against the United States vice consul, Mr. Magelssen.

SOFIA, BULGARIA, Aug. 30.—Dispatches received today from Constantinople, Salonica, Monastir and Adrianople reveal an equally unsatisfactory condition of affairs in Macedonia. From Salonica come reports of new risings. At Monastir the insurgents are said to be masters of the situation. Telegrams from Adrianople declare that the insurgent bands are continuing their ravages.

At the moment that the porte is asking Belgium to supply officers for the Macedonian gendarmerie the Swedish ambassador at Constantinople has notified the Turkish government that unless they receive their pay immediately the Swedish officers now at Uskub will leave the country.

The Dnevnik says the Servian diplomatic agent has notified the porte that two divisions of the Servian army have been mobilized without any hostile intention as regards Turkey, but they will be sent to the frontier to prevent Albanian incursions into Servia.

YANKEE WINS IN PLEASURE OR BUSINESS

Sir Thomas Lipton Says America Is Greatest Country on Earth.

BRITISH TOO SLOW

[BY PRIVATE WIRE TO THE GAZETTE.]

New York, Aug. 30.—Sir Thomas Lipton, when seen on the Erin today, apparently was tired of talking yacht, and he turned his back on Shamrock III. as though he would not care very much if he never saw her again. After a brief reference to the gale, Sir Thomas got talking about the relative commercial strength of Great Britain and the United States and said:

"There is no more loyal Britisher than myself, but I can't close my eyes to one thing, and that is we are a decaying nation, commercially, as compared to your country, and the United States is the greatest country on the face of the earth today.

"In England our imports exceed our exports two to one, while over here it is just the other way. Our merchants can't seem to understand that you must supply people of other countries with what they want and not with what the people of England need.

"When a man lands in New York and wants to do business all he has to do is to go into an office and in a few moments he can find out all he wants to know. In London, if he went into an office in the same line of business, after a lot of talk he would probably be informed that he might find out what he wanted to know in Manchester. New York is in touch with the whole country, while London, the metropolis of the world, is not.

"Not only that, but in England there are two classes, while here men are on an equal footing, all working for the good of their country. A New Yorker may have his Fifth avenue mansion, but he goes down to Wall street and mixes in with all sorts of people, so all swing together for a common end.

"There is a kind of feeling here that one man is as good as another. No one cises pulling one way and one another as it is abroad."

Senator Hanna Out of Bed.

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 30.—(Special.)—Senator Hanna left his bed today and walked about the house. His condition was very much improved. He expects to go to his office tomorrow for a conference with Gen. Dick, the chairman of the Republican state committee, but it is doubtful if his physicians will permit him to leave the house for a day or two.

TWO DEATHS RESULT FROM LABOR CONFLICT

Striking Machinists Lose Their Lives By Drowning While Quarreling With a Non-Union Man on Ferryboat in the Ohio River.

[FURNISH TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

Bellaire, O., Aug. 30.—A clash between the striking machinists of the National Tube Company's Riverside works occurred here last midnight, in which two young men lost their lives. Fred Williams with two other non-union men left the works last night and came across the Ohio river. When they arrived on this side they separated so they would not be known.

Williams, while in a saloon on Union street, made the brag that he was a "scab," and well able to take care of himself, flourishing a revolver. This soon reached the ears of the strikers, many of whom live in this city, and they started out to find Williams. He was seen near midnight in the public square, and was taken to task for his bragging. Seeing that he was about to get into trouble he made a dash for the ferryboat Charon, about a block away. Anthony Heileran and William Pracht, two strikers, ran after him.

He reached the boat just as it was pulling out with about 75 passengers for Benwood. Heileran and Pracht followed and a fight began on the boat. The strikers, it is alleged, threw Williams down on the deck and kicked him. He rose and grasping the guard rail with one hand drew his revolver with the other and fired one shot at the men. Just at this moment the guard rail slipped out, from its fastenings, letting all three of the men fall into the river, when the boat was about 100 yards from shore. The boat was stopped and taken back to the Ohio side, and an effort was made to rescue them, but as the river was very high and running swift they could not be found.

The ferry then went across, and upon its return Williams was seen hanging to the float, having swam out from the river. He was taken to jail by an officer. The bodies of the young men have not been recovered.

BERLINER AIRSHIP WILL BE GREATLY IMPROVED

Method of Propulsion by Skyrockets Not to Be Used in New Machine.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—In a few weeks Emile Berliner will test an enlarged model of his flying machine, which is now in the course of construction at his laboratory in Columbia road. This machine will be an improvement on the airship model which flies so successfully when tested on August 19. Mr. Berliner is now in the Pennsylvania mountains on a brief vacation, but will return to Washington in about a week. Meantime his son, Edgar Berliner, is busily engaged in perfecting the new model. The tail will be larger than the old model, and the three cylinders, which form the main part of the airship will be placed some distance apart rather than near together as was the case in the old machine.

"The most original ideas embodied in our models are the incline at the end of the cylinders and the application of the large tail," said Edgar Berliner, son of the inventor, today. "The pressure of compressed air against the incline and against the tail is what raises the machine so successfully. By means of the tail it will also be possible to guide the machine and change its course. It is our purpose to have the tail something like a fan. It will consist of plates which close over each way and can be adjusted so as to regulate the movements of the machine. An adjustment of the tail will also make it possible for the machine to descend something like a parachute to the ground.

"We are experimenting with propellers of various sorts to take the place of the skyrockets, which have been used in propelling our models. Many propellers for airships have been devised by inventors, but it is extremely difficult to find one which is sufficiently powerful to drive the machine forward at a high rate of speed and is at the same time light."

Private Daizell Says Tom L. Johnson Does Not Expect to Be Elected.

Johnson, Democratic candidate for governor, in joint debate at Caldwell, O. Private Daizell says: "Johnson has no expectation of being elected, and conceding Herrick's election by 200,000 majority."

Mr. Daizell was formerly a resident of Pittsburgh, but now makes his home in Washington, where he practices law.

MME. JANAUSCHEK IS DYING IN POVERTY

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—(Special.)—Mme. Janauschek, famous for many years as an actress, but who for some time has suffered from paralysis, is said to be slowly dying at the home of Mrs. Aston at Saratoga. The fund of $5,000 raised for her through a performance given April 15, 1901, has long since been expended, and several weeks ago Mme. Janauschek was forced to sell the last of her diamonds for $850.

Mr. Heinz is active in the management of the assembly.

LIVE WIRES CAUSED TWO DEATHS ON FARM

Rescuer Killed While Endeavoring to Take Boy from Fatal Net.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

BEAVER, PA., Aug. 30.—A live wire fallen from a pole of the Beaver Valley Electric Power Company cost two lives near here today on the farm of John Galey at Windy Ohoel. The dead are Owen Bowen, 18 years old, of Beaver, and George Adams, 20 years old, a colored servant on the farm.

During the recent storm a tree was blown down in a gully at the end of the farm and in its descent it parted the wires with it. They remained heavily charged. This afternoon Ernest Bowen, an older brother of the dead boy, found his brother lying under the wire tangled in a death struggle. Ernest attempted to rescue Owen and was himself severely shocked. He then made his way back to the farmhouse and summoned help.

In the rescue party was the servant Adams, who attempted to draw the boy's body from the fatal net. His wrist touched the wire and he was instantly electrocuted. The gardener, John Wilde, managed to draw the body out, but the boy was dead.

50,000 BARRELS OF OIL BURNED AT SOUR LAKE

DALLAS, TEX., Aug. 30. (Special.)—Fire last night in Sour Lake oil field destroyed two storage tanks containing 50,000 barrels of oil. Joseph Martin, a laborer, fell into the top of one of the tanks and was burned to death. Fire in the Beaumont field late last night burned 100,000 barrels of oil. The losses will go close to $150,000.

BRYAN LEAVES JOHNSON TO FIGHT BY HIMSELF

Cancels All His Ohio Stumping Engagements Because of Clarke's Indorsement.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

CLEVELAND, Aug. 29.—It now seems that William J. Bryan has deserted his intimate friend, Mayor Tom L. Johnson, of this city, whom he has praised numberless times in the last few years. Bryan promised before the Democratic state convention to stump Ohio for Johnson, his tour to begin at Toledo tomorrow. Bryan was to have been the guest of the mayor here today, but tonight Johnson announced that Bryan had wired him canceling all of his Ohio engagements, adding that the Nebraskan might speak at the state fair in Columbus. In the event that he speaks at Columbus, it will be a non-partisan speech.

Johnson said he did not know why Bryan had canceled his Ohio engagements, but it is told by some of the mayor's close friends that Bryan objected to rebuke Johnson for having forced the nomination of John H. Clarke of this city for United States senator. Clarke is a Gold Democrat and voted against Bryan in 1896 and again in 1900. He went farther than that and took the stump against Bryan. For this reason Bryan refuses to aid the Ohio Democrats and Johnson will have to fight the campaign alone.

WORK OF COMMISSION

Boundary Line Between Canadian and American Possessions Is to Be Decided.

HAVE PLENTY OF EVIDENCE

[SPECIAL CABLE TO THE GAZETTE.]
(Copyright, 1903, by New York Herald Co.)

London, Aug. 30.—Elihu Root, secretary of war and third member of the Alaskan boundary commission for the United States, and Gen. John W. Foster, agent for the United States in the case, arrived today on the Celtic. Senators Lodge and Turner, the other two members of the commission, are expected from the continent tomorrow.

Mr. Root, accompanied by Mrs. Root, Miss Root and his secretary, L. P. Marion, is stopping at the Hyde Park hotel. Gen. Foster, who is at the Carlton, where the offices of the commission will be established tomorrow, is accompanied by Mrs. Foster. The staff, which is at the same hotel, consists of Judge Jared W. Stickney and David T. Watson, the prominent Pittsburgh lawyer, who are counsel for the United States before the tribunal; Hamilton Taylor, former United States minister to Spain; C. P. Anderson of New York, junior counsel; Professor Lansing of Watertown, N. Y., and Foster's associate in preparing the case; Mr. Landon and Mr. Anderson. There are also, with the party several typewriters and stenographers brought over from Washington for similar work.

Soon after Mr. Root came after he arrived and he will be tied hard a pleasant evening, but begged to be excused from discussing the work of the commission. He however expressed the opinion that the work before the attorneys would be finished by the middle of the month. Gen. Foster said the case for the United States would, then, be in readiness with about two weeks to spare.

"The work before our commissioners," said Gen. Foster, "is to decide where from the mountains that separate Alaska and Canada the chain continues being whether it runs across inlets or straits of the sea, for you must remember, for Alaska, coast is somewhat similar to the coast of Norway—or whether it runs inland there.

"The Canadian contention is that it runs across, leaving the United States with a lot of isolated rocky promontories. Our contention is that the line runs around all bends of inlets and, therefore, gives Canada no access to the ocean.

"As to the location of the course of the commission—well, this is a lawsuit, and you know what a lawsuit is. Still, I anticipate that this one will not take a great while.

Neither Mr. Root nor Gen. Foster was able to say whether the proceedings of the commission would be public or not, though the latter thought that the precedents established by the Behring sea commission, that of open sessions, would be followed.

SOLD HIMSELF TO THE DEVIL AND COMMITTED SUICIDE

SCRANTON, PA., Aug. 30.—After a two weeks' debauch, Reese Jones, a colored Oliphant miner, went home early this morning, told his wife he had sold himself to the devil and bargained to take her with him to hell, and then sent her in the chamber, after which he killed himself by sending two bullets into his abdomen. Mrs. Jones is not seriously injured.

TWO MEN SLAIN; $3,000 STOLEN

Robbers Do Desperate and Successful Job at Chicago.

MAKE THEIR ESCAPE

Shoot Occupants of Cashier's Office Through Windows, Then Batter Door Down.

CRIME CAREFULLY PLANNED

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

Chicago, Aug. 30.—Two men were killed and two wounded by bandits' guns at the barns of the Chicago City Railway Company, State street and Blue Island avenue, early this morning. The shooting was done by three men, who escaped after securing $3,000.

Three of the men who were shot were working in the cashier's office and the other was a policeman asleep in the outer office. The victims received no warning, but were shot without the assailants speaking a word. Those in the office were shot through a window before they were aware of the robbers' presence, and the policeman was killed as he was lying down in a bunk where he had been asleep.

After disposing of all opposition one of the robbers broke open the door of the inner office with a sledge hammer which he had brought with him, and procured $3,000 in bills when he was lying on the desk. While he was at the door of the safe two companions of the gang were safe with drawn revolvers. No effort was made to secure the silver coin, which was scattered about, and the robbers did not even open the mail bags which were in sight.

After they had secured the money, the three men packed their revolvers and made their escape. Although shots were fired in the direction of the fleeing men, no one could give the police any clew as to the direction taken by the men. So far only three other men besides one of the dead on the floor. The police in the Englewood station arrested three men they have held on suspicion of being implicated in the crime, but only two could be identified.

THE KILLED.

FRANK STEWART, 19 years of age, shot through the body below the heart, died at 4 a. m. today.

JOHN D. JOHNSON, policeman, 40 years of age, shot through head by the same bullet as the above, died at 5:30 a. m.

THE WOUNDED.

HENRY HOKE, 19 years of age, shot in left arm, wound probed, will recover.

The robbers were carefully planned, and the men showed a perfect familiarity with the arrangement and surroundings of the office. Every one had evidently been called down to business, and the work of each was performed without any signs of nervousness.

The Elite cleaners was the hold-up to their purpose that could be found, Saturday night is always a busy night for the Elite cleaners, and there is never less than $1,000 in the office. The robbery occurred just after the last car-load of the night had been sent in and gone home.

FRENCH GENERAL BUYS GERMAN ARMY SECRETS

Eight Men Arrested on Charge of Selling Them and Will Likely Be Executed.

[SPECIAL CABLE TO THE GAZETTE.]

BERLIN, Aug. 30.—The palace and the whole war department are surrounded by secret spies, the object being to prevent any information as to the movements of troops from reaching the ears of the French government. It is rumored that eight men have been arrested charged with selling secret information to a French general, who, for large sums, had bought maps which will enable the French government to equip the whole French army with rifles and rapid fire guns, which are German inventions and far superior to any possessed by any other European army.

The eight men, who have been watched closely for several weeks, are now under arrest, and will be placed on trial before high officers and, as their guilt is already established, they will probably be shot within a few days after the commencement of the trial.

KING'S SUBJECTS HOPE HE WILL DIE SOON

DUBLIN, Aug. 30.—(Special Cable.)—The whole city of Dublin is rejoicing over the report that the King is dying. It is expected that the news will be announced officially tomorrow. The people are celebrating the event in the streets and in the shops in every part of the United Kingdom, as it has been known for some time that the suffering of Queen Victoria's subjects would be relieved by the accession of the King, and the people hope to be relieved from the oppression of Queen Victoria's reign. The people take no interest in the coronation of the King, and the general opinion is that the coronation will be the occasion for another outbreak of the Irish Nationalists, who are always ready for a fight.

Prince Adelbert Comes to America

BERLIN, Aug. 30.—(Special Cable.)—Prince Adelbert, third son of Kaiser Wilhelm, actually worried his august father into giving him permission to visit the United States. Speaking of the proposed visit the kaiser said to one of his adjutants:

"I simply had to promise Adelbert that he might go. Ever since Heinrich returned he has left me no peace, and though he may be too young to reap the benefits which would come to a more mature person visiting the United States, the trip cannot help but broaden his views, and so I have decided to let him go."

The prince is to join the cruiser Hertha at San Francisco. He will sail for New York and on his way to his ship will visit most of the American cities of importance. The date for his departure has not been fixed, but the young prince is already making plans for it. Prince Adelbert Ferdinand Victor, called Prince Adelbert, is the third son of the German emperor. He was born July 14, 1884. Prince Adelbert at six years of age was placed on the roll of the marines as a sub-lieutenant. He is a lieutenant also in the same company of footguards as his two elder brothers. From his sixth year he has been particularly instructed in everything pertaining to naval matters, as it has been designed that he shall someday be an admiral in the imperial fleet. Like all the children of the German emperor, Prince Adelbert has had a most rigid training. He had to rise, even when very young, promptly at 6 a. m., winter and summer. Prince Adelbert is said to be particularly full of fun and mischief and has given his brother and senior officers a whole lot to think about since he has been in the navy on active duty. He is handsome, a good all-round athlete and a fine musician.

Lady Curzon to Hunt Grizzlies

LONDON, August 30.—(Special Cable.)—Lord and Lady Curzon of Kedleston, viceroy and vicereine of India, are soon to return home for a visit. Lord Curzon is to receive his appointment as viceroy for a second term. Lady Curzon, who was Miss Mary Letter of Chicago, intends to pay a long visit to America before returning to India, and a feature of the trip will be a big game hunt in the Rocky mountains with grizzly bears as the main game to be looked after. It is not known yet whether Lord Curzon will accompany her, but it is thought altogether likely. The party will include Englishmen and Americans. Headquarters will be established on a ranch in Wyoming where Lady Curzon on a "get" spent many happy days. This will not be Lady Curzon's first attempt at big game. She enjoyed keenly the great tiger hunt arranged for the late royal party by the rajah of Gwalior during Lord Curzon's progress through India before the great durbar. She has managed to be sport on other occasions during her stay in India, and is said to be enthusiastic. She gets as much enjoyment with the rumors as the male members of the party with their rifles, and has a fine collection of prizes bearing on this and other phases of the Indian life which she has taken herself.

Trial invitations for the trip to the Rockies will not go begging gave without acceptances.

Lady Curzon is a prime favorite in London society, both from the fact of her charming personality and great tact, and the other fact that Lord Curzon is looked upon as one of the coming men of the empire to whom no honor dying to eligible is unlikely to come.

LORD LANSDOWNE ASKED TO RESIGN

London Newspapers Sharply Criticise His Conduct of the Boer War.

CONDEMNED ON ALL SIDES

Roberts and Viscount Wolseley Testify to the Inadequacy of Preparations Authorized by Him—Outcome of Report of War Inquiry Board.

[Special Cable to The Gazette.]
(Copyright, 1903, by New York Herald Co.)

LONDON, Aug. 30.—The revelations contained in the report of the royal commission on the conduct of the war in South Africa have filled all England with consternation and indignation. Of the three volumes just issued much has been suppressed "in the public interest," but enough remains to justify apparently the opinion freely expressed that the war office at the outbreak of the trouble was in a state of incompetence which is nothing short of amazing. Press comments condemn Lord Lansdowne, the war minister, severely, and the Daily Chronicle calls on him to resign.

According to the testimony of Gen. Nicholson, the intelligence section of the war office relating to South Africa was run with two officers and one clerk. The recently settled mobilization recommendations of the war office, refused any increase. When England went to war there was no effective map whatever of the Orange Free State, the Transvaal Dr Natal. The British defense scheme were based on an inadequate force. It was merely that generals should report how they could make the best of what troops they had and that experts should prepare the plan of a scheme of mobilization in the early summer.

From Col. Altham's testimony it is apparent that the marquis of Lansdowne knew that there were 48,000 mounted Boers waiting to oppose the British. Yet, almost without exception, infantry were sent.

Commander-in-chief Viscount Wolseley lays great stress on the way Lord Lansdowne ignored his advice in 1899 when he was absolutely disregarded, the secretary of state for war refusing to sanction even the most urgently needed expenditures. This refusal delayed the army corps. Lord Roberts also condemns the initial preparations in South Africa.

The British had no quick firing guns in South Africa when the war started. Warnings from the cape were neglected. Nobody would anything till authorized by the secretary of state, with reference to sanction till September. Meats were sent in six-pound packages and soldiers threw them away as too heavy. Tons of it was left exposed and spoiled. Col. Knox declares that the quality of the rifles then were so bad that "you could not hit a haystack with them."

WANTED TO WATCH DAD.

An Allegheny Tot Did Not Want to Leave His Father's Street Car.

Because "dad" was at the lever, little Johnny Fisher refused to leave an Avalon car last night when it was brought to a standstill, until he was bodily picked up by the conductor and deposited, very much to the regret of the youngster, who had disembarked at Pakewell street, on California avenue, Allegheny.

Accompanied by his mother and a wee bit of a sister, Johnny, whose father is a motorman on the Pittsburgh Railways Company, got on "dad's" car last night in Allegheny, rode to Avalon and returned home. The embryo motorman enjoyed the clanging of the bell and the jolting of the car immensely. Unobserved by his parents near the front window of the car carefully scrutinizing every movement of his father, as the car swiftly glided down hill and through valleys.

When Pakewell street was reached little sister and mother picked up their skirts and alighted, but "Buster Brown" remained immovable with his face plastered against the window pane. The car waited longer than usual. Some of the passengers, fearful of being left, began to chide. The conductor looked patient and embarrassed. "Dad" knew what was doing, but he couldn't leave his post. "Take him off," asked the conductor. "Yes," came the answer from behind the window, and with two strong arms the infant passenger was helped out of the car. The gong gave a loud sound that must have been an echo of the little fellow's heart, and "dad" was on his way.

At the house of Antonio Luengo, in Meadow street, Luengo and 14 visitors were arrested. The crowd, all Italians, was drunk and disturbing the neighbors.

Seven young men, one of them colored, were arrested in Beiler street, while shooting craps.

SHEEP IN HER CELLAR.

Lawrenceville Woman Found Stolen Property in Her House.

Three dressed sheep were stolen from the store of Nick Malich, a butcher, in Forty-eighth street, some time Saturday night. Two of them were found by a woman in her cellar and turned over to the police. The bones of the third animal were found at Forty-eighth street and the Allegheny Valley railroad, where some dogs had devoured the meat.

Shortly after Malich reported the robbery to the police, Mrs. John Dugan, of No. 4830 Blackberry alley, reported she had found two sheep in her cellar. Capt. Peter Walsh, of No. 5 police station had the animals removed to the station house and Malich later identified his property. A securely-locked tee box had been picked to secure the meat and how they reached Mrs. Dugan's cellar remains a mystery.

PITTSBURGHERS WIN FINE PRIZE

Class from Here Successful in the National Swiss Turnerfest.

MEMBER MARRIED IN ZURICH

Joseph Bachman Fell in Love and Married Pretty Swiss Girl—The Children Brought Over to Parents Here.

A party of nine men, comprising a class of the Swiss-Turner association of Pittsburgh, whose headquarters are in Helvetia hall, Allegheny, arrived home last night from Switzerland, where they had successfully competed in the National Swiss Turnerfest. The class brought back one of the best prizes offered for singing at the fest. They arrived at Union station at 10:45 o'clock and were greeted by other members of the association, and by their wives and friends.

The class originally was made up of 10 men, but one of their number, Joseph Bachman, an employe of the Westinghouse Electric Company, at East Pittsburgh, fell in love with and married Miss Lean Hilsenbeamer, described as a pretty Swiss girl, and he will not come back to the country until next March. The class left here about six weeks ago under the leadership of Frei Fritz Stuniess.

The prize won by the Pittsburghers was a handsome laurel wreath and was awarded them for the best singing in the fourth category, theirs being what is known as the tenth prize, and one eagerly competed for, as the winning of the prize carries with it a mark of distinction. There were 125 classes competing for this prize.

The test was held in Zurich, Switzerland, and was a notable affair. Thousands of Swiss from all over the country attended, as well as those living in Germany, France, Holland and countries nearby. There were 850 societies in all represented and the one from Pittsburgh was the only one from this country. About 9,200 persons attended the fest.

Another interesting feature of the trip besides Bachman's marriage was the bringing over to this country of two children, a boy and girl, whose father works for the Westinghouse company. The man is Carl Soinder. The children were brought over by Prof. Simmen and the father met them at the station and an affecting scene followed.

CHINESE REFORMER'S GOODBY TO THE WORLD

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

PEKING, CHINA, Aug. 2.—The Chinese reformer, Shen Chien, like the Filipino patriot, Rizal, sent his farewell to the world in the form of verses written in prison on the eve of his execution. The spirit of the two valedictories is much the same. Chinese poetry is difficult to translate accurately, but the following is a literal rendition into English:

Loaded with clanking chains, I am taken from prison
By the Chen Chi gate. I shall lay down my life
On the execution ground there my old friends have shed their blood.
Five loyal and six learned, all Hukwang men
Japan and Russia are struggling for possession of Manchuria.
Henceforth the cradle of the race is lost to China.
Partition comes apace; I cannot bear to think of it.
You rulers of the country, have you ever seen the wish of subjects?
Let all the public papers over the wide world, because of my buried wrongs, publish the story of my faithful services.
For making public two harmless clauses of a secret treaty.
Ching Chean and Chung Lusing have worked for this woe.
The thirty-one years of my life now past, though I have Conquered some fame, are now all of no account.
Henceforth, come prosperity or disaster, I shall heed it not.
My spirit will find happiness chanting in Shen Chien had been particularly bold in denouncing the apathy of the government to Russian absorption of Manchuria. A short time before his arrest he published two clauses of what purported to be a secret treaty by which China conceded New Chwang to the control of Russia. Being barred from communication with the outside world, he died with the belief, as the verses show, that he had been betrayed by two officials, Ching Chean and Chung Lusing, once a friend with whom he had quarrelled because he had revealed this treaty.

The Chen Chi gate is the gate through which criminals are led from the board of punishments for the execution ground.

"Five loyal and six learned, all Hukwang men of fame," were the reformers from Hunan and Kwang Tung, who were beheaded in 1898, by order of the empress dowager, after the coup d'etat depriving the emperor of power.

1,000 REBELS SLAUGHTERED

curred in the environs of Salonica, and several skirmishes have taken place between Gievgyli and Salonica, and there has also been a fight near Edidjevarda, both sides losing heavily. In the district between Kastoria and Florina, south of Monastir, the insurgents have destroyed all the fortified residences of the wealthy beys. A notorious brigand named Abdul Medjid recently delivered a harangue to the inhabitants of Tetovo, telling them to prepare themselves to slaughter all the Bulgarians upon the first appearance of revolutionary bands in the neighborhood.

Turkish Soldiers Discouraged.

Many wounded Turkish soldiers have been brought into Salonica from Ushub, Seres and Monastir. The Turkish troops are reported to be greatly discouraged, and many deserters have been thrown into prison.

According to the Znevnik the hodja (teachers attached to a mosque) in the vilayet of Kosovo are preaching that the time for a holy war has come, and that the people must be ready to kill the Christians in the village. Insurgent bands are said to be in complete control of the districts of Demirhissar and Kirkseevo and the chief mountain passes in the vilayet of Monastir.

The total strength of the bands in the vilayet of Adrianople is estimated at 5,000 men. The insurgents have blown up the barracks at Chiktipe, near Mail-stor-povo, killing 60 soldiers. They also attacked and set fire to the Turkish camps at Bigripalanka, Kratovo and Kotchani. A great panic ensued, the troops firing into each other.

A private telegram from Rula, Bulgaria, near Kostendil, says the reservists in the frontier villages have received orders to be ready for mobilization the moment that fighting occurs at the frontier points.

No News from Leishman.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—Other than the advices from Admiral Cotton announcing his departure with the cruisers Brooklyn and San Francisco, for Beirut, there was no developments in the Turkish situation today so far as Washington is concerned. No additional information came today, from United States Minister Leishman. Secretary Hay saying tonight, he had not heard from our minister to Turkey since yesterday morning.

The interview with Chekib Bey, the Turkish minister at his summer home at Sayville, Long Island, was a topic of almost great interest in official circles today. His unexpected presence of an American fleet in Turkish waters lest it be taken by the revolutionists as an evidence of the American government's sympathy with the cause, it is thought will be a strong enough reason for its withdrawal.

Chekib Bey had not arrived in Washington up to 9 o'clock tonight. A number of dispatches are awaiting his arrival here. Presumably some of them are from Constantinople. Secretary Hay will grant the minister an audience tomorrow if he comes to the city.

The European squadron is on its way to the Turkish coast, the gunboat Nicthias having left Genoa yesterday. Admiral Cotton cables they will reach Beirut by Friday next.

OPPOSES THE REVOLT.

Gen. Garibaldi, the Italian Patriot, Refuses to Join War Against Turkey.

ROME, Aug. 30.—Gen. Ricciotti Garibaldi, who fought on the side of Greece against Turkey in 1897, says he did not find it strange that Greece and Turkey should unite in suppressing the Macedonian insurrection.

"I myself," he continued, "have urged Greece to come to an agreement with Turkey before Russian Pan-Slavism or Austrian Pan-Germanism gains the mastery over all the eastern Adriatic coast. Greece, Albania and Italy have only one road to safety and that is a full and cordial agreement with Turkey. Boppi Sacchi first asked my advice in organizing the Macedonian insurrection, complaining that I was unfavorable to it. I answered that I could not approve it because the insurrection was based on the hope of Austro-Russian intervention, which, if it came about, would be in the interest of those two countries."

ERRORS OF RECENT WAR WILL NOT BE REPEATED

Lieut. Gen. S. B. M. Young Says General Staff Will Provide for the Quick Mobilization of the Country's Military.

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—Lieut. Gen. S. B. M. Young, chief of staff of the United States army, who, during his trip abroad with Gens. Corbin and Wood last year had excellent opportunity for observance of British military methods, was asked tonight as to how the disclosures of the commission which investigated the conduct of the war with Spain compared with the recent startling revelations of the English commission of inquiry into the South African war. He replied:

"My knowledge of the British investigation has been gained entirely from the newspaper comment thereupon. I have no desire whatever to criticise the British army or British military methods."

Then after review of the condition in the United States at the outbreak of the war with Spain, Gen. Young said:

"While there was no lack of effort to prepare for the Spanish-American war, that conflict revealed certain inherent defects of the system which really led to the establishment of the general staff. This general staff must not only be ready with plans of campaign when war clouds are on the horizon, but must be prepared at any time to furnish the president at a moment's notice of the army with all information bearing on the readiness of the regular army and the militia for conflict.

"The militia reorganization act recognized the necessity to bridge the wide space between the regular army and the national guard. In the future the regular army will realize it must depend upon the militia for its support. The new system will make the militia an able support. Yearly mobilizations are now the rule and when war comes the militia will be concentrated rapidly and without a hitch.

"We were without an efficient general staff at the time of the Spanish-American war, but unquestionable energies overcame the deficiency. Greater results were without such a staff at the outbreak of the Boer war, and the investigation of that war is now the result."

ESTIMATE, BIGELOW'S NEW TROTTER, TO BE SEEN

Father of the Parks Will Have His Speeder at Tomorrow's Schenley Matinee.

Champing the bit and eager to be off, Director Edward M. Bigelow's new trotter will be observed of all horses at the Schenley Matinee club's races tomorrow. It does not follow that the director has entered the horse, Estimate, (by Specifications out of Filtration), in the races, but it is understood he will drive the animal to the track and from his buggy will observe the races.

The director has begun to take a good deal of interest in the Schenley park race course. Anything that will attract the people to his pet hobbies, the parks, and make these pleasure grounds attractive, always has the director's sanction, and he has entered with enthusiasm into the plans to make the race course available for the drivers of horses and for the thousands who like to see a spirited brush between fast equines. The Schenley club does not, however, monopolize the race course, for it uses it only on Tuesday afternoons, and the course is open to everybody who wants to urge his horse over the fine stretch of track.

By Tuesday afternoon the track will be exactly a half-mile in length, having heretofore been 7½ feet short of a full half-mile. The extra length will be attained by moving the fence and taking out a reverse curve. To make the track safer, the turns will be properly banked.

It is the intention next spring to build a grand stand on the course and also elevate the judges' stand, perhaps build a new one. Other improvements will be made as the need for them may develop. Mayor Hays is a frequent visitor at the Tuesday racing matinee, and of course, he approves of the changes being made. Highland and Schenley parks were both visited by large crowds yesterday, although as usual the attractions of the zoological garden brought many more hundreds to Highland park than to Schenley. The number of animal inhabitants took a decided boost last week, when an antelope died and no new ones were presented. The cool summer has been so grateful to all the four-footed and two-footed beasts and birds harbored there, that they are all living and in good condition.

METROPOLITAN COMPANY PASSES TO NEW OWNERS

May Be Forerunner of Consolidation of All New York Trolley Lines.

[By Private Wire to The Gazette.]

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 30.—Thomas Dolan, whose name was mentioned as one of a syndicate reported to have purchased the entire holdings of the Metropolitan Securities Company, the holding company of the Metropolitan Street Railway Company, from Kuhn, Loeb & Co., confirmed the report of the purchase today.

The report named besides Mr. Dolan in the make-up of the syndicate, known as the Whitney-Ryan party, William C. Whitney, Thomas F. Ryan, P. A. B. Widener and certain Standard Oil interests. The deal, it was said, is thought to be the first step in the long-rumored consolidation of all the traction lines of New York, surface, underground and elevated.

Mr. Dolan would neither confirm nor deny that he was one of the syndicate. He said:

"Thomas F. Ryan and a few of his friends bought the entire holdings of Kuhn, Loeb & Co. in the Metropolitan Securities Company, but further than that I don't care to talk about it. Yes, the transaction was consummated three or four weeks ago."

When questioned as to the probability of the merging of all the traction lines in New York, he said:

"Well, I don't know. You can't tell that. It's always hard to tell just what such a step of this kind may lead to."

Agreement Reached on Advance in Wages of 10 Per Cent Over Burns' Scale.

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

DETROIT, Aug. 30.—The conference of the wage committee of the Window Glass Workers of America, and the Independent Window Glass Company and the Federal Window Glass Company, ended this forenoon, and the men representing the various interests left the city at noon. Business was practically completed last night, but the finishing touches to the agreements were given today.

As was announced in The Gazette today, it was agreed to withhold all wage scales until the present stock of glass in the country is exhausted, and further that there will be no resumption of work in the factories until a general resumption is ordered. It was also agreed that during the next year tonnage of work, as well as resumption, shall be general in all factories. It was stated this afternoon that the cooperative companies of the country will also adhere to this general stoppage and resumption plan.

A uniform scale of wages, which will be an advance of 10 per cent over last year's so-called Burns' scale, was decided upon. As a result of the increase of wages, there will be an immediate withdrawal of all current price lists on glass and an advance in prices ordered. The manufacturers will meet at Columbus, O., tomorrow, to decide on this advance.

MOTOR BOATS RACING FROM PARIS TO OCEAN

57 Craft Start on Six Days' Journey to Determine Which Is the Best.

[Associated Press Cable to The Gazette.]

PARIS, Aug. 30.—Great public interest has been aroused in an automobile boat race which started today from Paris to the sea, a distance of 320 miles, fifty-seven boats starting, representing the principal makers of automobiles. There will be six stages: Paris to Manes Elbeuf to Rouen, Caudebec, Rouen, Caudebec, Havre and Deauville. The journey will take six days, owing to the numerous locks on the Seine, the finish taking place next Friday.

The contest takes place under the patronage of the minister of marine and three other members of the cabinet. A great crowd, including many notables, witnessed the start of the race this morning, the boats starting at intervals from 8 o'clock until 11.

The boats carry motors of from 30 to 60-horse power and are capable of making 22 knots per hour. The first boat arrived first at Nantes, at 6:45 o'clock this evening, and the fleet arrived second. All the towns along the Seine are making preparations to enthusiastically greet the competing motor boats.

TWO DARING HOLDUPS.

Victims Seriously Hurt and Relieved of Money—Police Arrest Three Men.

Two daring highway robberies occurred late last night, the victims in both cases being assaulted, beaten in a serious manner and robbed of considerable money. He was rendered unconscious and robbed of $27 in money. He was found in the street by a citizen and taken a short time later and sent to the Homeopathic hospital. He is suffering from contusion of the spine and many bruises, and is in a serious condition.

Grant boulevard, above Washington street, was the scene of the other holdup. Charles Allen being the victim. He was beaten into insensibility by three men who robbed him of $7. He was found at 11 o'clock by Officer John Nornberger, who sent him to Central station. A. E. McClain, of Grant and Diamond alley, which consisted of several cuts and bruises. He had to make it lap while sitters and a strikebreaker's overcoat for all his trials, swimming in the Schuylkill river.

Daley's time for the swim was 28:30. He walked in 11:01 and ran the mile in 6:24.

CHRISTIAN SCIENTISTS TO DEDICATE CHURCH

Magnificent Structure in New York Is Third Costliest Temple in the City.

[By Private Wire to The Gazette.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—Plans are under way for the dedication of the new $500,000 building of the First Christian science church at Central park, West and Ninety-fifth street. The service will begin Sunday, November 15. Hopes are expressed by members of the congregation that Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy, founder of the Christian Science, will attend.

This structure surpasses in cost every other church edifice in New York, except St. Patrick's and St. John's cathedrals. Every dollar of the $500,000 used in its construction was raised by the congregation. The church will seat 3,000 people. One feature is an elevator service from the main entrance and two galleries of the main auditorium, which give a total seating capacity of 4,000.

Windows of multi-colored glass fill the auditorium, the greater part of a large dais having the effect of a throne. From this the readers of the church will conduct services. Immediately over the auditorium is the reading room, and will the small lecturing rooms is occupied by the pastor and the readers. The effect is much that of the cabin of a steamship. The interior decorations of the whole building are the most expensive money will buy. Lavish use is made of beautifully tinted marbles, mosaic glass, stucco and frieze.

Baseball Magnates in New York Make Answer to the Smaller Associations.

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—A meeting of the National Association of Baseball clubs was held in this city today. The purpose was to frame an answer to the big leagues concerning the pooling the small leagues will take regarding the agreement the National association has been invited to sign.

A committee was authorized to present the National agreement to members here to the Buffalo commission. A resolution was adopted that we adhere to the terms of the three-year-old agreement of the National association, which expires the last of October.

BIGELOW WANTS A NEW PLATFORM

Has Given Orders That One Must Be Erected by Middle of Next Week.

HIS MEN STANDING IN MUD

Desires to Have Them Drawn Out of the Mire and the Debris of Broken Pledges—Muehlbronner Is Now Getting Busy.

By the middle of next week Thomas S. Bigelow promises to have a brand-new platform erected for his candidates. In the rush of selecting men who would stand with the machine without being hitched, the platform was overlooked. In the meantime, the personal nominees are taking the advice of Committeeman H. H. Negley and just "standing in the mud."

How to get them out of the mud and debris of broken pledges is the problem that is confronting Bigelow. Every time that he has erected a platform the people have insisted upon it being carried out. Bigelow agrees that platforms are all right when one is hunting voters, but they are a nuisance after that period has passed. He has tried several of the trick variety, but found that they always trick the wrong fellow.

The boss had thought that he would wiggle through without a platform this time, but the people started to clamor for one. W. H. Stevenson started trouble by announcing that he would rather be a man without a party than a member of a party without a platform. Since then there have been many tickets given out for the Stevenson band wagon. Then Mr. Negley made his remark about Bigelow's candidates just "standing in the mud."

Bigelow's Platform Ideas.

There was so much truth about that mud statement that Bigelow decided something had to be done. Orders were issued to get busy in the platform line. "You remember last spring in the hurry of capturing the Democratic convention for Hays," said he to his kitchen cabinet, "we overlooked the platform and it was necessary to put it out in sections. One day I called Hays into the office and we got up a set of promises to the people. Later it was necessary to send out another bunch. This fall we want just one dose and I guess that there had better be nothing said about our gratitude to the railroads for those passes. Something that looks well on paper, but does not bind us to anything if my ticket goes through, and at the same time will satisfy the reform element, is what we want this fall."

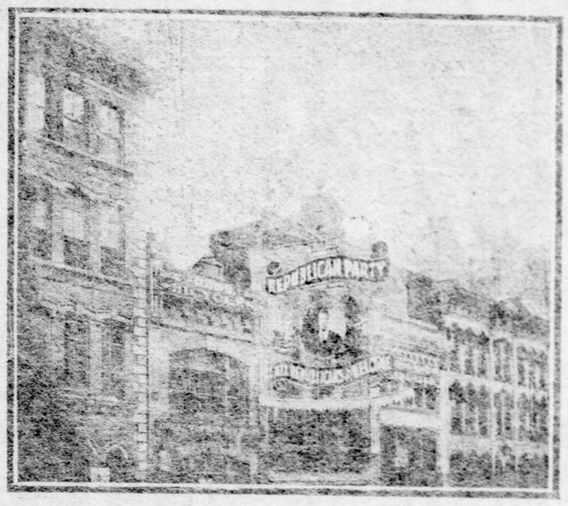
In order to carry out the desires of the boss in the platform line, Secretary James W. Clark announces that the county committee is to be convened this week if a quorum can be induced to attend. Chairman Morry A. Verner—from a typewritten list—will appoint off hand and at random a committee on platform. The appointees will be furnished with a neatly typewritten batch of meaningless pledges. Next week there will be another meeting of the committee, if a quorum can be counted, and the new declarations of principles will be handed out to the public. But Bigelow's candidates will continue to stand in the mud.

Muehlbronner Will Be Busy.

Senator Charles Muehlbronner will begin an active campaign today for the Republican shrievalty nomination. He was selected Saturday as the choice of the Allegheny Republican executive committee for the nomination. This means that he can count upon the North Side delegates. He is a tireless worker and knows how to labor effectively. Nearly all of the candidates for the shrievalty lived in Allegheny and now that they have unanimously agreed to support Muehlbronner it is probable that he will not have very serious opposition in the primaries. He says that he is ready to meet all comers and join in the contest to a finish. Senator Muehlbronner and Harry L. Goehring, Bigelow's shrievalty candidate, live in the same election district and just about a square apart on the same street.

Mrs. Robert E. Stewart of Braddock and T. B. Cook of Pittsburgh are the prominent candidates for district attorney on the Republican ticket. The old soldiers are to vote Thursday night on the question of indorsing the candidacy of the major. If their report is favorable he will no doubt announce himself for the office.

A Sign and Decoration For The Republican Headquarters.



This is a picture of the new banner that has been swung in front of the Allegheny county Republican headquarters in Smithfield street, near Virgin alley. It was suspended Saturday and was much admired as a handsome, tasteful decoration and sign for the headquarters. The picture on the banner is a portrait of President Roosevelt, and the invitation below, "All Republicans Are Welcome," is a watchword of the party for the coming campaign.

FORMER DUBLIN MAYOR IS VISITING PITTSBURGH

Valentine Dillon Is Being Entertained by His Brother-in-Law, James Phelan.

Valentine Dillon, the former mayor of Dublin, arrived in Pittsburgh last night. He is accompanied by Miss Dillon, his daughter, and during the week he will spend in Pittsburgh he will visit at the homes of James Phelan, his brother-in-law, and Dr. R. W. Stewart, Mr. Phelan's son-in-law. Last night Mr. Dillon and his daughter stopped at Dr. Stewart's house, Fifth avenue and Beechwood boulevard.

Mr. Dillon's wife, Mr. Phelan's sister, died about two months ago, and as soon as he conveniently could he decided to take a trip to America and accepted Mr. Phelan's invitation to spend some time in Pittsburgh.

Mr. Dillon's itinerary has not yet been made out, but after staying in Pittsburgh he will visit Niagara Falls and spend some time in the west. He visits America, it was said last night, in a strictly private capacity, and, although he has been prominent in the home rule movement in Ireland he will make no addresses in this country.

Celebrate Church's Reopening.

The Friendship Park Methodist Episcopal church celebrated the reopening of its Sabbath evening services by a fine musical and song service last night. The program of 14 numbers included three by an orchestra. Prof. Ereckson rendered two violin solos and two anthems were sung by the church choir. Solos were sung by Miss Anna Kunkel, Miss Nellie Folsom and Mrs. C. L. Snyder and duets by Miss Anna Kunkel and Ellis Payne, Mrs. Snyder and C. H. Lutz. Mr. White rendered two cornet solos. The congregation was large. The Rev. Dr. R. I. McKee is pastor of the church.

BIG FLOCK OF EAGLES STARTED FOR NEW YORK

Members of the Local Aerie Will Attend the Annual Convention.

About 100 members of Pittsburgh Aerie, No. 76, Fraternal Order of Eagles, left last night for New York, where they will perch for five days in convention with other well-groomed birds of similar species from all over the country. The local Eagles were accompanied by the members of neighboring locals.

They met at old city hall at 8 o'clock in full uniform, wearing solvenir badges. From the hall to the station they were headed by a squad of police and the Second Brigade band. The entire delegation goes with the instruction to support Congressman Timothy D. Sullivan of New York, as worthy president.

The delegation will be strengthened upon arrival in New York by another Pittsburgh party of about 50, who have been on pleasure trips in the east.

J. S. Flannery was chairman of the Pittsburgh committee of arrangements.

It is estimated that 15,000 Eagles will be in line in the parade on Wednesday. The convention will last five days. One feature will be the delegation from Cheyenne, Wyo., the aerie which President Roosevelt joined during his recent western trip. The Cheyenne boys will take their broncbos with them and will lead the parade.

SLIDE FOLLOWED STORM.

Several Hundred Tons of Earth Covered the Allegheny Valley Tracks.

One of the largest landslides that ever occurred on the Buffalo & Allegheny division of the Pennsylvania resulted from Saturday's storm. Late Saturday night several hundred tons of earth slid down on the tracks at Lower Hillville, a small place six miles north of East Brady. No accident was caused by the slide, but traffic was delayed for several hours.

The slide caused the detouring of trains Nos. 1 and 2, by way of New Castle. This caused a great many disappointed people. The earth was removed from the tracks about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

First of the Special Autumn Sales Today.

Summer is practically gone—there may be a few camp followers as to warm days, but to all intents and purposes the Autumn season begins with today. All arrangements point to it—our Store is completely full of new things for Autumn and Winter; the theatres have begun their season; the ever-welcome Exposition will open its gates Wednesday evening and thousands will listen to the entrancing music of the famous Italian band with its equally famous eccentric director, Creatore.

This 58-year-old business, noted in all these years as being foremost with everything new, has chosen today for the first Exposition of entirely new things for Autumn. This in itself would be right good news, but when we add that it will be seen that we have put forth extraordinary efforts in behalf of the thousands and thousands of patrons of this store. There is nothing like making a good first impression.

Much of today's news has been given. Supplementary news has a first publication this morning together with some sections that will bear repetition.

The Great Feature of the Day Is the Continuation of the Special Sale of Furs.

The Question of a Perfect Mattress.

In buying Mattresses one has to go somewhat on the principle of boyish trading "sight unseen." This is particularly true of the bait thrown out to buy mattresses on trial, and if not found up to the mark, return, thus giving some other person a chance to try the mattress.

We do not take back mattresses that have been tried. There is something repugnant about the offer. But in selling we have samples to show exactly how the felt is built in, the quality of the cotton used, and after that feature of the mattress is examined we give our absolute word that the mattress we sell you is a better mattress than can be purchased anywhere for a like amount of money.

Our great mattress, one that has leaped into favor in a shorter space of time than any mattress we know of, is the IMPERIAL FELT MATTRESS. It is a genuine Elastic Felt Mattress of pure, clean cotton, absolutely devoid of any mill waste or linters. We have several grades of this mattress—the best at $18 for full size bed. Other grades at $15, $12, $10 and $7.50.

New Autumn Furnishings for Men.

New Shirts, new Underwear, new Bath Robes and a host of other new things.

Stiff-bosom Shirts of the celebrated Star make, known all over the country for most exceptional fit and wear, beautiful patterns and colorings, $1.50, $2 and $3.

New Merino medium weight underwear for Fall, white, $1.25 and $1.75 a garment; gray, $1 and $1.50 a garment.

New all-wool Underwear, gray, $2 to $5 a garment.

New medium weight Balbriggan Underwear, $1, $1.25, $1.50, $1.75 a garment.

We are sole agents for the Allen, Solly & Co. and the J. & R. Morley English makes of Underwear. There is none better, and our prices are the lowest for these fine goods—from $2 up to $9.50 a garment, according to size and quality of material. Merino, all wool, silk and wool.

New Bath Robes of eiderdown, new colors, $3.50, $5 and up to $8 for men's size; $3 and $5 for boys' size.

New Bath Robes of Terry Cloth—a year-round bath robe—wash well, wear long—$5 each and up to $20.

New Autumn Silks.

Manufacturers' Trade Sale.

Our buyer went into the silk market last week and he plunged freely, as any good buyer will do when he finds quotations right.

Both in Black and in Colored Silks, women have the opportunity of buying fine silks today far below what such new and favorite weaves should sell for. Some of the low prices:

Black Peau de Soies, full yard wide, $1.35 grade, for, a yard .. $1.15

A fine black Taffeta with a pretty chiffon finish, $1.25 grade for, a yard 85c

Black Taffeta of a very heavy weave, $1.25 grade, for, a yard 88c

Great variety of new Silks in stripes and dots which prettily contrast with the blue grounds. 85c grade for, a yard 68c

A 27-inch Taffeta Glace, in new Autumn colorings, $1.25 grade, at, a yard 78c

Our New Lace Curtains.

Our buyer visits the foreign lace curtain factories each year and in his doing so we always have the advantage of presenting the newest patterns in the inexpensive lace curtains as well as the finest woven. Our Fall importations are now ready.

Aside from lace curtains we desire to call the special attention of housewives to a new dotted and figured Swiss Muslin, to be employed in the making of sash curtains of all widths, and for the making of bedspreads, thereby having spread and curtain a perfect match.

There are two widths of the muslin for curtains, 30 and 40 inches, and for the spread the width is 60 inches, thus absolutely doing away with the abominable center seam. We are quite sure this idea will meet the cordial appreciation of housewives who enjoy harmonizing effects.

Among the new curtains now ready are

New and dainty Sash Curtains of embroidered Swiss Muslin in two widths to match full length windows, $1.50, $1.75, $2 and up to $4 a pair.

New Tamboured Swiss Curtains, full length and width, $2.75, $3 and up to $4.50 a pair.

New Sash Curtains of Torchon Lace and French Net, $3, $3.50 and up to $5 a pair.

Monday, August 31, 1903.

What will probably prove the last of the yacht races will be sailed today. The event was postponed from Saturday because there was too much wind on that day. It will be the last trial for this year, because it is almost a certainty that Reliance will win, and it may be the last for years, because Sir Thomas Lipton despairs of being able to build a better boat than the defender. Sir Thomas will be missed. He is good company and that most admirable character in sport, a good loser. The cup will remain, however, and it will be open to whoever desires to challenge for it. We hope to see a successor to Sir Thomas and we would welcome German and Japanese competition. It is the sport of millionaires, but it is clean and healthy and whoever will may enjoy it from the excursion fleet.

Today the Pittsburgh schools open their doors for another year of educational work. It is an event worthy of note. The public school holds a most intimate relation to American life. Next to the family it is the power that molds character and gives trend to national thought or development. Every person is interested—even those too old to attend, who have no children to send, because the schools have their influence upon public policies. We hope teachers appreciate these facts and are prepared to meet their responsibilities. It is not merely a matter of diffusing a maximum amount of concrete knowledge that calls together the thousands of children and scores of teachers today. It is a matter of founding methods of study and inculcating good principles. Learning is a good thing, but character is more important. The two belong together.

On Wednesday the Exposition at the Point will open its doors upon the richest exhibit ever gathered there. Of course there will be many familiar features and the thoughtless visitor may exclaim that it is the "same old Exposition." Not so to the observant patron. He will find many things new. The Nernst and Cooper Hewitt lamps will have their first genuine demonstration in Pittsburgh. There will be other electrical wonders. There will be new machinery, new fabrics, new processes. Even that which is familiar will be new, for while Exposition auditors heard Creatore and his musicians last season they will hear from them new music this week. For the visitors from out of town there are more new features, for to them the city is included—its great buildings, the attractive shopping places and all. There is a Greater Exposition of the Greater Pittsburgh this year.

Official statistics of petroleum production as reported to the United States geological survey, division of mineral resources, show an increase in production for Texas and California and a decrease in the older fields, most marked in those yielding the quality known as Pennsylvania oil. There is little relation between this oil and that found in Texas and California, so that while those grades sell very slow the Pennsylvania product is properly selling at a higher price. The official statistics are furnished by Frank H. Gilpenet of Oil City, who is unquestionably the best living authority on the subject. They do not indicate an oil "famine," so much talked of lately, but they show a positive decrease in the supply of high grade oil, for which the Texas and California product, on an asphaltum base, is no substitute. The figures fully confirm the editorial views expressed in The Gazette some time ago.

Councilman Murphy declares City Controller Larkin must give testimony before the committee appointed to investigate the bureau of health to sustain the charges made when councils were asked to act. We believe Mr. Larkin ought to tell the committee what he knows about the matter, but we do not think the committee should give undue attention to Mr. Larkin's connection with the affair. The duty of the committee is to investigate. It should hear anything that Mr. Larkin or any one else has to tell that is likely to assist it in arriving at the facts. There is no question of persons concerned, but one of the protection of the public health. The bureau has been "stamping out" a particular disease for nearly two years and the number of fresh cases has increased alarmingly of late. There is a question of methods, measures and administration involved, which the committee of councils should have satisfactorily answered. There is no call for sticking about how the investigation shall be conducted. It is not and should not be made an inquiry into petty economies such as a barrel or two of whisky, more or less, but ought to be an investigation on broad lines of how best to protect the health of the people.

Councilman Joseph C. Wasson is to be commended for his active interest in filtration and his efforts to have the work begun at once. There is no use in waiting until winter to have more bonds voted. If more bonds are needed they should be voted as soon as possible so the work may be gotten under way at the earliest possible moment. It takes time to build filter beds and the sooner they are begun the sooner they can be completed. The expense over and above the amount of proceeds of the bond issue several years ago should not be very great and we are sure the people are ready to vote the amount necessary on assurance that there will be no more dallying and evasion, but that pure water will be supplied as soon as possible. Everything ought to be in readiness to supply filtered water to the entire city as soon as the contract with the Monongahela company expires in December, 1906. In order to have it so there must be no more delays. Neither should there be any complications through submitting other matters to the voters at the same time.

Turkey's Pleas.

Chekib Bey's solicitude for his country is natural, but it does not follow that orders must be issued at his request to stop the American squadron on its way to Beirut. Advices from Constantinople say the Beirut district is greatly agitated and the fanatics are urging the massacre of all Christians, particularly Americans and Europeans. The Turks aver this agitation has been caused by knowledge of the approach of the American warships, though the neglect to explain how such knowledge happens to be widely disseminated in a district never in close touch with the outside world and among the dervishes of all people, who are not supplied with information by news bureaus.

If the howling dervishes know that an American squadron is approaching Beirut they must have been told of it by government agents and the greatest pains must have been taken to disseminate the news. If the dervishes are agitating for the murder of Americans at Beirut and Harput the American marines cannot get there a moment too soon. In fact the authorities at Washington are to be commended for their sagacity in allowing the ships to proceed after receiving the intelligence that Vice Consul Magelssen had not been killed.

Turbulence is infectious. The disturbances in Macedonia have just become known to the dervishes in Asia Minor and they are becoming restless. No one doubts their good will to murder every Christian in that part of the world, particularly those from foreign lands. Despite the explanation that the attempt on Mr. Magelssen's life was by a personal enemy, the probability is it was the first manifestation of the desire to annihilate all the Christians in that district. Protection is needed there and at once.

An incident of the ruction in Macedonia is the report by the Russian consul at Uskub that Turkish soldiers fired on his consulate. That affords an indication of the Turkish temper and enmity toward all foreign representatives. The presence of foreign ships may encourage revolutionary spirit, but the powers cannot afford to expose their own representatives for the sake of the sultan's peace of mind.

Capital's Answer.

The question has often been asked in and out of Mexico, "After Diaz, what?" Diaz is the grand old man of Mexico, who has given stability to Mexican institutions, who has developed it from a condition of anarchy to one of peace and prosperity, and who is now passing down the shady side of the mountain with few years before him. In the nature of things it will not be long until the course of events will give the full answer to the question. Has the president of Mexico continued at the helm of the ship of state because of a love for the exercise of power, or has he remained partly because he feared the consequences of his retirement? Has his virtual dictatorship, a beneficent one, continued because his habit of control was fixed, or because he could see in none of those surrounding him the qualities necessary to continue the work begun by him and which he has carried forward so well? Unquestionably he at first kept on the harness because best fitted to wear it, and the wearing of it must have at last become a habit. Undoubtedly he at times found it irksome, but reports that he would lay it aside were not borne out in the end. His rule was acceptable and as long as he chose to rule Mexico was glad to profit by his masterful and patriotic direction.

The name of Diaz has been so long associated with Mexico for Mexico's good that the advance of age, if not the approach of another set time for retirement, causes the question to be again debated, "After Diaz, what?" The best answer is that the Mexico of today which Diaz will hand over to another, or the Mexico which he will leave behind him, is another Mexico and vastly superior to the Mexico he took hold of. His firm, wise rule has given opportunity for the development of new habits and new modes of thought in the native population, has given birth to industry and created and invited enterprise. In his lifetime the men who will control Mexico when he steps aside or is gone have been trained in the arts and ways of peace and industry. They may not measure up to his stature, but that remains to be seen. But whether they do or do not his impress is upon them. Distrust of them abroad is felt only because the master has not been willing or ready to entrust them with independent control. But this condition cannot much longer continue, and soon it will be the pupils and not the master with whom the outside world and investors in Mexico will have to deal. One of the best guarantees, however, of the stability of Mexican institutions is the foreign capital that has flowed into Mexico, encouraged thither by the enlightened rulor of the country. The Gazette of yesterday told of one new and large enterprise in which Pittsburgh capitalists are interested. It is only one of many. First the mines of Mexico attracted American and foreign capital, but in recent years there have been large investments in industrial and railroad enterprises and in developing utilities of one sort and another. The orderliness of the country under Porfirio Diaz has given safety to investment, and its increasing volume is a strong assurance of the stability of Mexico after Diaz. The investments in Mexican enterprises today begin to approach more and more in character investments made in the United States, being with a view to the continuous and regular return on capital rather than a gamble for a quick profit, for an income rather than for the harvest of a season. When a country new to capital has reached this stage in the history of its development there is evidence that its future is established on a good foundation. This changing character of investments in Mexico may be held better than anything else to answer the very important question, "After Diaz, what?"

The timidity of capital would not permit large commitments to the task of Mexican development if owners of capital were not well assured that their enterprises would be protected and encouraged. That the volume of investment grows larger and larger is eloquent testimony that far-seeing men have taken the measure of Mexico's future after Diaz and are satisfied with the prospect. Capital apparently believes that Mexico no longer requires the fostering care of its great dictator. Present investments are necessarily made after careful estimates of what political conditions will be after he has passed from the scene. Capital invariably discounts the future and its free flow to the south of the Rio Grande is a prophecy that those regions will keep step with the enlightened progress of the world.

No Light at Harrisburg.

Our esteemed contemporary, P. Gray Meek, who associates Democratic politics with journalism in Center county, and who outside of Center county is best known as a war horse of the Democratic party, is the latest to contribute the information that the Democratic state convention, which is to meet in Harrisburg this week, will abstain from concerning itself with matters of national import or bearing. This is hardly news which is given out by the former state senator and former clerk of the house of representatives, and its importance is not as an item of news, but in its reiteration. It was told a long time ago in Philadelphia by a Democrat in the confidence of our gallant friend, the gusher prince and member of the Democratic national committee, that there would be no indorsement of anyone for president and no striking of keynotes of national policy. Then from time to time as Democratic county conventions were pulled off their failure to deal with questions of national concern was ascribed in the news reports to orders. Now, on the eve of the assembling of the state convention of the Democracy in cheap quarters at the state capital, the Center county member of the state committee, and an officer, we believe, of the committee, fearful, perhaps, that the example of Ohio may be considered to demand something of Pennsylvania, is put forward to make it clear that orders have not been changed. Mr. Johnson may whoop it up for the Kansas City platform and other leaders in other states may devote themselves to other rocks on which the Democratic bark has been made a drydock subject, but the Pennsylvania Democracy, with national questions uppermost in all men's minds, is to preserve a calm and unruffled aspect with regard to them and let it go at that. It might seem entirely in order to congratulate former President Cleveland on a recent happy event and it might not be considered altogether out of place to congratulate Mr. Bryan on the financial success of the Commoner, but even these amenities will be passed up, and if orders are obeyed, as they in all probability will be, the platform adopted at Harrisburg will be a mere chastened and refined imitation of the one adopted last year at Erie.

But why should not the Democracy of the Keystone state say something to the Democracy of other states on matters of national concern? Isn't there a lesson in the shrinking (not to say shirking) vote of the Democratic party in this state for the Democrats of Texas and the Democrats of other regions? The causes that have made Pennsylvania so heartily and enthusiastically Republican operate elsewhere, if in less degree. If they are seen here at their strongest isn't the Democracy of Pennsylvania better fitted than the Democracy of any other state to tell what they are and to sound a warning to Democrats elsewhere of the folly of the party's course? Our friend and fellow citizen, the Democratic national committeeman, knows them, or ought to, from A to Z, and P. Gray Meek, the last to speak for him, is not ignorant of the reasons for the failure to elect Democratic legislatures since the legislature of which he was an officer. If we thought there was a prospect that the Pennsylvania Democratic convention would act on this unsolicited counsel, and that the national Democracy would heed the voice of the Pennsylvanians, we would not mention the matter. But as the thing stands we see no harm in directing attention to a truth that ought to be self-evident, and do so merely for the purpose of illuminating the fact that what is the wise thing for the Pennsylvania Democratic party to do is the thing that it will not do. There is a gloomy prospect ahead of the Democratic party, but no lamp will be lighted at Harrisburg this week to dispel it—not even a tallow dip.

A Valuable Asset.

Guglielmo Marconi has come again to this country, bearing new inventions and his old, inexhaustible enthusiasm. Of the inventions, he says they are designed to simplify, cheapen and improve the wireless telegraph. Their value remains to be proven. Of the enthusiasm of this young Italian it may be said it has been proven and is a most valuable asset. Fortunately, it is not patentable. Marconi has no exclusive right to that enthusiasm that makes for hard work, enabling common mortals to achieve success and geniuses to perform miracles.

During the yacht races last week the wireless systems became inextricably tangled. Marconi's and another were used to report the movements. Both failed. Their Hertz waves ran into each other and made jargon of the messages. The exhibition was quite discouraging to many who had been banking on the wireless, and some of the New York papers took the matter seriously. Not so Marconi. His Hertz waves might be indented or distorted by those of a rival system, but his waves of enthusiasm were never touched by the discouraging prophecies. To his scientific mind the interference of the systems appeared most natural, but with his new inventions he expects to overcome that trouble.

We do not know what Mr. Marconi's new inventions are. We cannot tell in how far they will obviate the difficulties of his system. But we appreciate Marconi's enthusiasm. It is of the winning quality. It will keep him at work on his project for a lifetime, and during that period wireless telegraphy will become an accomplished fact. Probably it will not all be worked out by Marconi. It is one of the odd things in connection with mechanical and scientific utilities that the thought of several men must be combined to attain perfection. The main inventor often overlooks important details. It may be so with Marconi. It may be necessary to graft upon his system the Hewitt interrupter, the Fessenden coherer, somebody else's accelerator and a dozen other men's ideas in tuning, sparking or generator before messages may be sent across the ocean with speed and accuracy. Even so, Marconi's enthusiasm is of a quality to endure and dominate the compound. It is of that overflowing nature that will infect other men to the finest end that the Marconi system will work and the Marconigram will become common.

The Turkish minister's expressed fears that the dispatch of American warships to Turkey may imperil American lives furnish proof that President Roosevelt's determination to forestall trouble has made an impression.

It is said that City Controller Larkin is unable to figure out a vacation for himself this year, which, considering his reputation for making the numerals respond, is somewhat remarkable.

Berks county adds to the number of delegates already elected to the national convention with instructions to vote for Roosevelt. Pennsylvania is thus second in the field as well as first.

Tom L. Johnson stopped a runaway horse at Akron on Saturday with as much apparent ease as the people will stop his run for the governorship in November.

Of course, it is necessary to have the Democratic state convention meet to make the nominations regular, but it looks like a lot of fuss and bother for nothing.

It is said that the program for the Democratic convention at Harrisburg is cut and dried. The rent of the convention hall is also known in advance.

Sir Thomas Lipton has fathomed the secret of American success. So, of course, it's only polite to say that it takes brains to appreciate brains.

The Turks are doing the work cut out for them by the Macedonian revolutionary committee, but it's rough on the census.

So far as Sir Thomas Lipton is concerned the America's cup is ours. We have done our best to make it so, old pan.

Wall street used to be considered a barometer. Now it is merely what is popularly known as a dead one.

The proprietor of the fusion organization again promises reform while the people wait.

Pittsburgh's exposition sets a good example to St. Louis by being ready for the opening.

In addition to Tom L. Johnson's other handicaps, Bryan is to stump Ohio for him.

Yes, the "r" months get into the game tomorrow, but please don't mention it.

Mr. Johnson and Mr. Bryan are arranging to go down in one red burial blent.

Here's hoping that this will be a good day for the race—yacht and human.

Councilman Stevenson has a few reform items up his own sleeves.

All roads lead to home, and summer resorters are traveling them.

The summer girl by any other name will be just as sweet.

IN THE EYE OF FAME.

There is a project to erect a monument to the late Pope Leo XIII. on the summit of a mountain near Carpineti, his birthplace.

Miss Ethel Bailey, a sister of United States Senator Joseph W. Bailey of Texas, has entered Mississippi politics as a candidate for state librarian.

The Bismarck monument for the new Berlin cathedral has at last attained its final shape. The iron chancellor is to be represented as a German knight of the middle ages.

Lady Henry Somerset is withdrawing gradually from her career as a reformer. She is very sensitive on the subject of her hobbies. Her pet aversion is William Waldorf Astor, who once said of her: "She must be the sort of woman who drives a man to distraction."

THE HARVEST APPLE TREE.

The old harvest apple tree—
Haunt of boy, and bird, and bee—
With its arms held wide to welcome all the breeze's revelry!
You remember where it grew,
And remember how we knew
All the goodness and the gladness that it held for me and you.

When the wind was soft and low,
How the leaves swayed to and fro
With the sunshine sifting through them to the dappled green below!
And the shimmer and the shade
Were an endless cavalcade
Of the fairy troops of summer to attend us as we played!

In the branches, waving high,
We were sailing, and we'd cry
An Ahoy! to all the argosies or clouds a-scudding by!
On the grass below we'd weave
All the fancies that deceive
And convince us of the truthiness of the land of make believe.

And the yellow apples, too—
Sweetened by the dripping dew,
Faintly blushing at the kisses that the teasing sunshine threw—
O, the famed Hesperides
Never yielded such as these,
With a wine-tang that coaxed us till we dipped it to the lees!

The old harvest apple tree—
Haunt of boy, and bird, and bee—
With its arms that waved a welcome every day to you and me!
Clear in memory's dim haze,
Happily it swings and sways,
Wafting to a thousand echoes of the cherished yesterdays!

The Quiet Observer.

By ERASMUS WILSON.

The elderberry crop is being marketed and seems to be a fine one.—Grove City Reporter.

You may not feel disposed to enthuse greatly over this announcement, but it will touch the heart of many a city fellow who was once a country boy, and set his thinker a-going backward toward the happy hunting grounds of his youth, wherein he chased the nimble groundsquirrel, stalked the wily crow, tracked the rambling bird soon, caught the possum by its prehensile tail, stalked the skunk after all, lured red-gilled chubs and pumpkin-seed sunfish with multy grub and fish worm—in fact, where he did lots of things, most of which he didn't do because he wanted to, but because it was his hard luck to be there when they had to be done.

Wasn't it funny or, was it—that you always happened to be there, or within easy call, when work had to be done, and particularly when you had something of your own on hand?

There may be better pie than elderberry pie, but it hits the bill all right on certain occasions—at least it used to.

You may be able to recall occasions when elderberry pie met the demands of your appetite fully and satisfactorily.

The efficiency, as well as the sufficiency of elderberry pie depends largely upon the occasion, and particularly on the maker and the baker thereof. If your best girl was the artist in the case, the pie was all right, and any fellow who had the audacity to say it wasn't, or ventured to cast slurs upon it was, in your estimation, a liar and a villain, and you could lick him in a minute, and stood ready to make your boast good.

* * * * *

A peculiarity of the elderberry is that it doesn't lose its characteristic virtues in the process of drying. They just seem to shrivel up all together, and to patiently wait for moisture. How long they will wait is not definitely known, but dried elderberries are dependable at all ages. Pour some warm water—not scalding hot—over them, set 'em back on the stove and let 'em soak for awhile, and there they are, as plump and fresh-looking as when first spread out in the sun to dry. And about as good, too, their virtues reviving with their genial, moist environment.

When the wholesome virtues of elderberries have been evaporated or dried out, there is not anything left, just the same as when the virtues of a man or woman have been eliminated there is hardly enough life to cast a respectable shadow.

The moisture absorbed by the elderberry during the soaking process is promptly converted into real juice, and the berry is practically itself again. But when it is placed between savory sheets of dough, the top one jabbed full of holes with a fork, and the pan in which the combination has been put into a properly tempered baker, the elderberry literally swells with pride—swells until it bursts with very sweetness.

There are more aristocratic berries than the elder, and some more attractive on account of their grand colors or eccentric shapes, but for common, everyday domestic and social purposes the dull long berry in the front row—long after some of the petted, coddled new-comers have passed out of sight, and out of memory, too.

On account of its manifold virtues the elderberry was present in the garden of Eden, and had Eve stuck to it, and not gone off after a good-looking apple, it might have been better for her. This is only a guess, but a safe one. Don't you think?

* * * * *

One time during the war, a soldier belonging to a topographical engineer corps in Sherman's army, had been sent with some other mounted men to spy out the country through which the Fourteenth army corps was to pass in making one of those sudden "swings to the right" that occurred so frequently in the Atlanta campaign.

This soldier had a horse by the name of "Cholly." He wasn't a thing of beauty from an esthetic point of view. In fact he was as ugly as a mud fence, but architecturally he was all right. From the time the stars came out at night and "thought" him akin to the milky host not being struck on his shape, nor even pretending to know that he was not as good-looking as the handsomest war steed in the army, he wasn't a bit backward about going into the best horse society anywhere.

And he was no coward, Cholly wasn't. He had served all through the campaign in one of the most famous fighting batteries on the line, and could show scars enough to have entitled a soldier to an honorable discharge. In fact he was borrowed from the convalescent corps camp, whither he had been sent to recover from a shell wound in the shoulder that unfitted him for the harness, but not for the saddle.

The battery boys liked him as well that they would only allow Topo, the engineer, to take him on his solemn promise to return him as soon as he got well. While Cholly was about as ugly as they made 'em he had sense—good horse sense, and lots of it. He never wasted his strength champing the bit, rearing and prancing to get into a fight. Indeed, he wasn't a bit anxious to get in, but when he did he was there to stay until it was over. The boss said he never lost his head, and never refused to go where directed.

* * * * *

It was one of those long, hot anxious days about the 1st of August, 1864, that Topo and Cholly were surveying roads off to the right, and the orders were to finish them up in a hurry, and not to come in until the work was done, unless driven in.

The work was not so hard, but there wasn't anything to eat. It had all been eaten by the Johnny cavalry. However, they managed to live on hope and the very few blackberries left by the cavalry. They would laugh and say, when looking over a stripped patch, that the Johnnies weren't expecting them or they would have left some, seeing that they toasted so much about their southern hospitality.

After two nights and two days watching and fasting Cholly led the way into an open spot off the path leading across from one main road to another. From his step and general bearing Topo suspected that Cholly had scented something to eat. When fairly in the open he threw forward his pig ears, tilted his nose in the air, and then made a bee line for a dark patch down by the edge of the woods.

It was an elderberry patch which the Johnnies had missed. And there were elderberries by the bushel, and as fine as any lover could wish for. Cholly charged right into the thick

RICH AND RARE ARE THESE BONES OF STONE

Dr. Holland Describes a Few Specimens of the Bayet Collection of Fossils.

EXCEEDINGLY FINE EXAMPLES

Great Assemblage of Fossil Beasts, Insects, Plants and Shells of Early Geologic Times—Rhamphorhynchus a Perfect Gem, Ichthyosaurus a Beauty.

Dr. W. J. Holland is justly proud of the Bayet collection of fossils which he, as director of the Carnegie museum, bought for Pittsburgh. The collection is so large that only a few specimens can be harbored in the present museum, but after the new buildings have been erected this assemblage of stony forms of prehistoric animals, birds, insects, plants and shells will have a worthy home.

The pictures herewith presented are taken from cuts of specimens in other collections, and it is said that none of them comes up to the excellence of those examples which the Carnegie museum has acquired.

Take the rhamphorhynchus alone. That strange looking reptile flew and crawled a matter of tens of thousands of years ago and complete fossilized specimens are scarce. The picture in this issue is a representation of a restored rhamphorhynchus bought by the late Prof. Marsh. The one Dr. Holland has acquired is practically as complete as the picture represents Prof. Marsh's to be.

"The Bayet collection is rich in pterodactyls, an order of reptiles more or less bird-like in aspect," said Dr. Holland. "They had the fore-limbs modified for flight. They are found in the formations extending from the Lias to the cretaceous. The skeleton is pneumatic, the bones being hollow and light. The head, as in birds, was articulated at a right angle to the axis of the spine. Some were quite small, not larger than sparrows; others were colossal in size, with an expanse of wing of nearly 20 feet. Their flight was probably not so powerful as that of birds, or even of some of the bats of the present day. They are exceedingly bizarre in appearance. Perfect skeletons are very rare. The most perfect of all those found in the Lias of Holzmaden, is contained in the Bayet collection. It is a specimen of the rhamphorhynchus and was prepared by Hauff, the well-known German preparator. It cost originally about $2,500.

"There are a number of skeletons of rhamphorhynchus besides this specimen, which goes to Pittsburgh as the result of the purchase of the Bayet collection. There are also a number of fine pterodactyls, creatures somewhat like the rhamphorhynchus, but having many differences, especially in the dentition.

"The collection is very rich in fishes. In fact, it is one of the very finest collection of fossil fishes from Solenhofen and Monte Bolca in existence. The great thalassaurus lemonnieri is represented by one of the most perfect examples known. It is about 20 feet long.

"One of the gems of the collection is a specimen of an ichthyosaurus, preserving not merely the skeleton, but the outline of the dermal covering (the derman cuticle not being broken as in the specimen herewith pictured.) It is one of two such specimens which are known and altogether the finer of the two. It is valued at $3,000, and could not be duplicated.

"There is a very fine specimen of lariosaurus, an exceedingly rare beast, and the collection also contains an elegant specimen of plesiosaurus of large size."

RIO OF YOUNG MEN GET RIDE IN WAGON

The arrest of three young men for corner loafing at Fifth avenue and Marion street last night attracted a great crowd. The men were told to move on by an officer, but they refused. The officer left them there and returned later with two other officers and the men were placed under arrest. Their friends tried to have them released, but they were finally landed in the Center avenue police station. They gave their names as Jacob Rosenstein of No. 1227 Ann street, Harry Latsch of No. 11 Townsend avenue and Samuel Linderman of No. 83 Locust street. The men said they were merchants.

THE DEATH ROLL

Harry Clay Myler.

Harry Clay Myler, 39 years old, son of John A. Myler, ex-postmaster of Allegheny, died Saturday in the infirmary hospital in Mobile, Ala. Mr. Myler had been ill with malaria fever, but that he was seriously ill was not known to his family until Saturday night. He was born in Allegheny and had lived almost all his life on the North Side. After graduating from the High school of Allegheny, being a member of the first class from the new High school, he entered the employ of the Union Switch and Signal Company. He remained with that concern for several years and then went to Boston in charge of the office of the Wood-Harmon Real Estate firm. One year ago last December Mr. Myler went to Alabama as treasurer of the Creola Lumber Company, which is backed by capitalists from Pittsburgh, Beaver Falls and Greensburg.

Mr. Myler was a member of the Allelson and Monongahela clubs of Mobile and Iron City lodge No. 182, Independent Order of Odd Fellows of Pittsburgh. He is survived by his father, John A. Myler; three brothers, Theodore, William A. and Charles B. Myler; and one sister, Anna A. Myler, all of Allegheny. The body was shipped from Mobile yesterday and is due to arrive at the Union station at 9:40 tonight. The funeral will take place from the family residence on Nunnery Hill, Allegheny, Wednesday.

Manasseh Arnold.

Manasseh Arnold, aged 78, is dead at his home in Clarion, Pa. He went to Clarion county in 1846 and became interested in the mercantile business with the late James McLaughlin of Leatherwood. After retiring from office he engaged in the mercantile business in Clarion, and was also interested in banking and lumbering business. He was president of the First National bank of New Bethlehem and was a director of the First National bank of Clarion. In 1871 Mr. Arnold was married to Miss Amanda Rose McKelvey of New Bethlehem. Six children survive, they are Mrs. W. H. Maney, Clarion; Mrs. J. W. Hall, Clearfield; Mrs. P. C. Vowinckle, Jr., Pittsburgh; Thomas W. and Harry W. of the firm of Arnold Bros. of Berwyn, and Bertha at home. Mr. Arnold retired from active business several years ago, having amassed a considerable fortune.

Four sons and one daughter survive him: Lawrence, of Allegheny; John, Earl and Clifford, of New Brighton, and Mrs. H. E. Johnston, of Pittsburgh.

SMALLPOX ON THE WANE.

But Six New Cases Yesterday and Epidemic Is Considered Nearly Over.

Pittsburgh's smallpox record took a decided slump yesterday, there being but six new cases reported. Two deaths occurred in the municipal hospital. Supt. G. Wash Moore of the health bureau stated last night that he believes the epidemic in Pittsburgh is gradually dying out. He said:

"During the past few days these serious cases of smallpox have disappeared and nearly all the new ones are light. I have made an examination of the records of this smallpox scare and find that nearly all the victims had not been vaccinated at all in some cases and others not for many years."

Edward Carter, a negro, aged 39 years, of No. 3625 Kirkwood avenue, died at the municipal hospital of smallpox yesterday. He was admitted on August 20. Elizabeth Stack, aged 9 months, of No. 555 Lowell street, died of the disease at the hospital yesterday afternoon. The child was taken there on August 26.

PLEHWE SUCCEEDS IN SHELVING WITTE

Czar's Minister of Finance Resigns to Become President of Council of Ministers.

M. PLESKE IS GIVEN THE POST

Latest Development in Warfare Between Autocratic Minister of Interior and Great Financier — Repressive Measures Against Strikers Ordered.

[Associated Press Cable to The Gazette.]

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 30.—An imperial rescript, dated August 29, is published appointing Minister of Finance Witte president of the committee of ministers. The rescript at the same time entrusts him with the work of bringing to a speedy and successful conclusion the negotiations for the Russo-German commercial treaty and with the continued supreme direction of the ministry of finances in order that his close acquaintance with the requirements of Russian commerce and industry may be fully utilized. The Official Messenger announces the appointment of M. Pleske, director of the imperial state bank, as minister of finance.

Although the resignation of M. Witte as minister of finance was expected ever since his last budget statement, which had a valedictory tone, the secret was well kept. M. Witte went to Peterhof after midnight and presented to the czar his resignation and his recommendation of M. Pleske as his successor, simultaneously, in order to forestall any intrigue in the interest of some follower of M. Plewhe, minister of the interior.

M. Pleske has made a good reputation as director of the imperial state bank, but he never has exhibited any initiative, remaining a loyal subordinate of M. Witte, and doubtless he will try to carry on his policy.

The position of president of the committee of ministers is one of great honor but M. Witte's future interest is regarded as problematical, and his promotion is considered as a triumph for the Plewhe interest.

A special committee has been formed at the prefecture, composed of factory inspectors and various functionaries of the secret police, with orders from Minister Plewhe to prevent strikes at all hazards. The commission is arresting and banishing workmen by hundreds and has been authorized to employ both preventive and repressive measures.

NEVER LEAVE THE FIRST LOVE

MISTAKE THAT IS DANGEROUS

Buckeye Retired Clergyman Preached Eloquent Sermon in Christ's Methodist Episcopal Church on Text from Revelations.

The pulpit of Christ Methodist Episcopal church was occupied yesterday morning by the Rev. Dr. A. L. Petty of Ohio, who has been a member of the Pittsburgh conference for more than 50 years, 14 of which were spent as presiding elder of various districts of the conference. Since retiring from the active ministry a year or two ago, the Rev. Dr. Petty has divided his time between his country place, "The Oaks," near Duncan Falls, O., and his duties somewhat anomalous for a Methodist clergyman—as president of the Guernsey National bank, Cambridge, O. Dr. Petty preached yesterday from the text, "I have somewhat against thee, because thou hast left thy first love," Revelations, ii:4. He said in part:

The beloved disciple was in banishment on the lonely island in the Grecian archipelago called Patmos. He was there, he tells us, for the word of God and the testimony of Jesus. On the Lord's day he had a most glorious vision. He, as he prayed, heard a voice behind him, as of a trumpet, saying, "I am Alpha and Omega, the first and the last; what thou seest write in a book and send it to the seven churches in Asia."

He turned himself about to see who it was who spoke to him, and saw seven golden candlesticks, and in the midst of them, one like unto the Son of Man, clothed with a garment down to the feet and girt about at the breast with a golden girdle. His head and hair were white as wool, his eyes like a flame of fire, his feet like unto burnished brass, his voice as the voice of many waters. And he had in his right hand seven stars, and out of his mouth proceeded a sharp two-edged sword, and his countenance was as the sun shining in its strength. So resplendent, so overwhelming, was this vision that John fell down as one dead.

And he laid his right hand on him and said: "Fear not; I am the first and the last, and the living one, and I was dead, and behold I am alive forever more. Write these things down which I give thee, and send them to the seven churches in Asia." Then came the first message, to be sent to the church in Ephesus: "I know thy works, and thy toil and patience, and that thou canst not bear evil men, and didst try them which called themselves apostles and are not, and didst find them false, and thou hast patience, and did bear for my name's sake and hast not grown weary. But I have this against thee, that thou didst leave thy first love."

At this point it is well for us to observe the attitude and relation of Jesus toward the churches. He beholds the evil and the good; all hearts are open to him, and all regards forever. His knowledge of his church is perfect. If this was true 1,800 years ago, it is none the less true now, for He is the "same yesterday, today and forever."

Whatever may be your spiritual state now, if ever you were converted, you know what "first love" means. An opinion obtains that, in the nature of things, we cannot retain our first love—that it must subside, and we must come down from the heavenly place in Christ Jesus to which it exalted us, to the dull, hard experiences of everyday life. This I hold to be a dangerous mistake. Our first love need never grow cold; its fires need never burn low, but it may continue and grow until we are lost and swallowed up in love.

If you find that you have lost your first love, then, beyond all other interests, it is important that you recover it. To sacrifice this loss that it means the loss of all things. We can see from this teaching that the philosophical religion, made up of orthodox beliefs and sublime resolutions, wrought out in ritualism and formalism, but in which there is no love, will not serve. We may get into a routine life of ceremonies and forms, have zeal enough to burn heretics, and yet have no love of God.

We may give all our goods to feed the poor and our bodies to be burned, and yet without love it availeth nothing.

If we have lost our "first love" our Lord puts us in the way to recover it: "Remember whence thou art fallen; repent and do the first work again."

ST. JOHN THE BAPTIST CHURCH IS DEDICATED

Coadjutor Bishop J. F. Regis Cavevin Officiated at Impressive Services Sunday.

The new Roman Catholic church of St. John the Baptist, which is to form the center of a majestic group of buildings at Thirty-sixth street and Liberty avenue, was dedicated with impressive services yesterday. The Rt. Rev. J. F. Regis Canevin, coadjutor bishop of the Pittsburgh diocese, was the celebrant of the high pontifical mass which followed the dedication which was also under his direction.

The dedication began at 10 o'clock in the morning, when the formation of the procession of priests and altar boys took place. The procession was large, there being 28 priests and 75 altar boys in richly-colored vestments in line. The procession moved through the interior and exterior of the new edifice, stopping at various places to perform the offices included in the ceremony of dedication.

After the movement of the procession the congregation assembled in the beautifully decorated church and Bishop Canevin celebrated pontifical high mass, assisted by Father Francis Keane of Sacred Heart church, assistant priest; Father F. X. Kettell, St. Peter's Brownsdown, deacons, and the Rev. Tomacewaski, St. Stanislaus, sub-deacon. The sermon was preached by the Rev. Father Joseph Suehr of the Church of St. Peter and Paul, East End.

During the celebration, the choir, consisting of 24 voices, rendered the "Kyrie Eleison," "Gloria," "Veni Creator" and "Credo," in an impressive and elaborate manner. The soloists were Miss Eichenlaub and Miss Conley, sopranos; Miss Nichols and Miss Newmann, contraltos; Messrs. Mitchell and Reiman, bassos. Mrs. Charles Mitchell presided at the organ.

Following the dedication services the Rev. Father E. M. McKeever, pastor of St. John's church, gave a dinner to the visiting priests at his residence in Thirty-second street. Those to attend in addition to the participants named were: Father Christopher, O. M. Cap, Father Gabriel, O. M. Cap, Father McHugh, Father Ryan, Father Meishkiewcz, Father Tonner, Father Devlin, Father Pfiilter, Father Cunningham, Father Graham, Father O'Connell, Father Schwarzbrock, Father Greiner, Father Black, Father Lambing, Father Kiltell, Father Griffin, Father Price, Father Devlin, Father Mellady, Father McCabe, Father O'Connell and Father Brady.

In the evening a solemn vesper services were held, at which the Rev. Father A. A. Lambing of Wilkinsburg, delivered the sermon. The choir rendered an elaborate musical program.

The new edifice, which will be the central of a group of parish buildings, was erected at a cost of $100,000, exclusive of the lot, which cost $60,000. The church is an elegant brick structure, almost square in its architecture, with a square tower rising in prominence above the main structure from one of the rear corners. Plans have already been made for the erection of the rectory and parochial school, which will supplement the church property.

TRADERS AND THEIR CAPITAL

Dr. Prugh of Grace Reformed Church Got Up-to-Date Sermon from Old Text.

WHERE HONOR AND FAITH ARE

Stock in Trade All Christians Have. Great Changes That Could Be Wrought if More Efforts Were Made to Spread Gospel.

In the new Grace Reformed church yesterday morning the Rev. Dr. John H. Prugh, the pastor, preached a sermon on "Splendid Traders," from the story of "The Ten Pounds," Luke, xix:13. Dr. Prugh said in part:

There is no country under the sun where business men display so much thrift and enterprise as in the United States. And surely there is no place where there is more honor and faith among traders than in Pittsburgh. God bless the conscientious tradesmen of our city and land!

Christians are traders. They ought to be the most splendid traders of all. They have had given them a certain stock in trade. They are expected to trade with it. And there will be an audit-day by and by. Entrusted with a capital, not our own, and told to do our best with it, a pound to each man, what is that? Not all have been blessed with the same talents. Not all have had the advantages of wise, cultured Christian parents. Not all have had an equally good start, with the same advantages for acquiring a thorough education.

We do not all have the same talents. But all Christians have one thing in common. To each has been entrusted one pound. We may not have made the same use of it, but to each Christian has been entrusted the gospel of Christ, the beautiful message of salvation from sin, the great truths of Christ's mission, Christ's character and Christ's work. The gospel—that's the pound.

A pound was a little sum. What can a man do with only $30 as his capital? Men have succeeded with less, if they have made as the rule of their trade, little economies, hard work and slow savings. There are many men in Pittsburgh today who began life with less than $30—a Hebrew pound—and they made it the basis of a large fortune. I have strong confidence when I say most of the successful business men I know began life as poor boys; a poor boy on a farm, a poor boy at the shoemaker's bench, in a rolling mill, in a carpenter shop, in a glass house.

The gospel may seem a little thing compared with some other earthly things. But it is enough to bring all men to the knowledge of their Father—God. If all Christians would trade it is the business of their life to trade with their pound. The business of our life. Who does that? We are interested in it after a fashion. Some in place at it. But if all Christians really made it the business of their lives to spread the gospel, the whole world would be blessed and revolutionized before we are a quarter way through the 20th century.

NEW FIRST CHURCH TO GET NO CORNER STONE

Majority of Presbyterian Congregation Absent and Celebration Not Arranged.

It is probable that there will be no corner stone laying in connection with the building of the new First Presbyterian church building in Sixth avenue. The structure has been rebuilt almost to the second floor and any ceremony in connection with the erection of a historic tablet in walls, would necessarily have to be held at an early date. No plans have been made for a cornerstone, and R. S. Davis, a member of the board of trustees, said yesterday that a celebration of this nature would be unlikely.

The pastor, the Rev. Dr. Maitland Alexander, and the majority of the members of his congregation are out of the city. Many are in Europe. In case the officers of the church and those members of the flock who remained here, desired to have a cornerstone laid, immediate steps must be taken. Dr. Alexander will return from the seashore next week, and services will be resumed in the Alvin theater on Sunday, September 13.

NEW HAZELWOOD CHURCH.

Ground to Be Broken Today for Edifice of Baptist Congregation.

Ground will be broken today for the erection of a house of worship for the congregation of the Hazelwood-Glenwood Baptist church in Hazelwood. The new building will be located on three lots recently purchased by the church in Johnston avenue, near Gertrude street. The cost of the ground and building will be about $8,250. John Bossinger has the contract for erecting the new church.

It will be large enough to meet the present needs of the congregation. Ample provision has been made for expansion when occasion warrants it. The Hazelwood-Glenwood Baptist church received its charter only last January. It was started as a Sunday school by members of the Fourth Avenue Baptist church, about two years ago. Regular church services have been held for about a year and a half. The present pastor, the Rev. George E. T. Stevenson, has been with the congregation just one year, having been called from Cortland, N. Y.

SEWER GAS EXPLODED.

Two Men Hurt in Downtown Manhole—Fell Over River Bank.

By the explosion of sewer gas in a manhole in Smithfield street, near Fifth avenue, yesterday morning, two men were badly hurt. C. A. Bussmeyer of No. 512 Greenfield avenue, a plumber, employed by the Allegheny County Light Company, and Alexander Long of No. 1371 Gibbon street, his helper, were at work when the gas exploded, and both were injured. They were taken to the Homeopathic hospital and later to their homes.

John Culek, a Slav, 34 years of age, of Gas avenue, Allegheny, while at work yesterday for Contractor Gwinner beside the Ft. Wayne tracks, near Woods Run, was struck by a mass of earth and stone that was loosened from the embankment. A large stone hit him upon the head, causing a serious injury. The man was removed to St. John's General hospital, Allegheny, where it is said his chances for recovery are slight.

Joseph Gubbech of No. 338 Thirty-third street fell over the river bank near his home yesterday afternoon and broke his arm. After being attended by a physician he went home.

DEMANDS THAT LARKIN TESTIFY

Murphy Insists Controller Be Witness at Investigation of Health Bureau.

HEARINGS TO BEGIN TONIGHT

Twentieth Ward Select Member Says Larkin Will Be Held to His Original Charges—Committee Has Power to Enforce Attendance of Witnesses.

"Controller Larkin must stand by the charges he made to councils in asking for the investigation of the health bureau and I will demand that he shall be the first witness to testify at the hearing before the investigating committee," declared Select Councilman John A. Murphy yesterday. Mr. Murphy is a member of the investigating committee.

"The controller has shifted since he asked for an investigation," said Councilman Murphy. "In his communication to councils he charged that the health bureau was 'rotten and corrupt,' to use his words, and upon these charges the investigation was ordered. Since then he has sent a communication to the committee, which will be read tomorrow night, and which is exceedingly mild in comparison with his former statement. It is his last statement which he wishes the committee to accept.

"In his last statement he prefers no charges, but simply states that rumors have reached his ears that there has been mismanagement in the health bureau, which has caused a lack of confidence in that particular branch of the city's service. I don't see from his last statement what there is for the committee to investigate.

Will See Stevenson Today.

"I will see Chairman Stevenson tomorrow and insist that he summon Controller Larkin to appear as the first witness. I will also insist that the original charges be produced and that the controller be held to them. Mr. Larkin should tell all he knows to the committee instead of remaining in the background and should tell where and how he got his information.

"Another thing. If there is anything wrong with the management of the health bureau, I don't see what councils have to do with it. That is a matter for the director of the public safety department. He is supposed to know his business and I fail to see how the controller should interfere."

The first hearing of the investigation committee is scheduled for tonight and in all probability there will be a lively session. At the last meeting Controller John B. Larkin was not present. Assistant Controller E. S. Morrow attended as his superior's proxy. The controller will probably not be present tonight unless Chairman Stevenson is persuaded to summon him today. The investigation is supposed to be held under the provisions of the Francies law, enacted by the last legislature, which authorizes councils or any committee thereof to force attendance of witnesses and to examine them under oath. Clerk E. W. Hassler has been chosen secretary of the committee because he is a shorthand writer, and it is the intention to record in full the proceedings of the hearings.

Brown's Position Doubtful.

It will be interesting to know what position Councilman Thomas M. Brown, the Citizens party candidate for sheriff, will take in the proceedings. He prevented a meeting of the committee by staying away, and it is predicted that he will not be present tonight and that if he does attend he will not take a conspicuous part.

Councilman Brown is regarded as a part of the Bigelow machine, which is not favorable to the proposed investigation of Controller Larkin. The parties in the management of smallpox epidemic, at which the controller aims, are still in charge, and it is believed that if anything irregular is discovered it will reflect upon the present administration as well as upon the former one. All the persons made a target of by the controller are anxious for the investigation, believing that it will be a vindication for them and mean the discomfiture of the controller, toward whom they do not feel very kindly.

The only persons summoned for tonight's hearing are Director Harry Moore, Dr. E. G. Matson, the city bacteriologist, and Dr. A. S. Booth, the city physician. Unless the controller receives a summons today none but the three mentioned will testify tonight.

LUGAS DOESN'T FEAR PROF. OSBALDESTEN

Says the Masseur and Swordsman Fled from New York When He Arrived.

Frank W. Lugas of No. 6319 Broad street, has concluded that Edwin Turner Osbaldesten will not dare either to come to Pittsburgh or to write any more threatening letters. Just why he has such hopes he is unable to state clearly, for of all the charges he spoke of making against Osbaldesten, only one was carried out, when he made affidavit here charging Osbaldesten with making threats.

Mr. Lugas' visit to the postoffice authorities were fruitless, for he was plainly told that the postoffice department could take no action unless he himself made an information against Osbaldesten, the authorities saying that the letters and books that Osbaldesten sent through the mails might be libelous, but if so, Lugas had his remedy in the courts of law.

Lugas says the New York police, on a search warrant sworn out by him, went through Osbaldesten's effects and took away two old paintings which the professor owned and a number of papers and pamphlets, but on what grounds he issued the search warrant he could not say. He admitted that he had lodged no information against Osbaldesten in New York. He had no fear that Osbaldesten may sue him for larceny.

He does not produce the affidavits, which, he says, the persons mentioned in Osbaldesten's German pamphlets, recently made in denial of statements made by Osbaldesten in print. Lugas says he visited a room in which Osbaldesten alleges, he made some damaging discovery by looking out of a cupboard door, said Lugas says the room that was shown him has no cupboard.

"Osbaldesten has gone to New Jersey," said Lugas. "As soon as he learned that my wife and I had arrived in New York, he fled. He dare not come to Pittsburgh, for the charge I brought against him for sending threatening letters still hangs over him. The case is ended."

Italian Brutally Wounded.

The wound inflicted with the coal pick is regarded as fatal. Eany and Frank Florenz were arrested, charged with felonious shooting.

BOND ISSUE VOTE BEFORE NOVEMBER

Sand Filtration Advocates Will Not Permit Delay Until February Election.

OPPONENTS HAVE BIG SCHEME

Alum Water Members Hope to Postpone Action Until Courts Are Reorganized and They Can Get More Support. Matter to Be Submitted in Few Weeks.

The advocates of sand filtration in councils will work to have the question of a bond issue for filtration submitted to the people before the November election. It is apparent to them that the alum water people have a scheme on foot to delay the matter until the February election and then to defeat the project, thus enabling them to take the money now in the city treasury and use it for their purposes.

To prevent any possibility of such a move and to have the matter settled as speedily as possible outside of politics, the sand filtration advocates will ask for a vote on a bond issue just as soon as Director E. M. Bigelow has prepared his estimates and the figures of the additional bond issue are determined.

Councilman J. C. Wasson, to whose efforts the present investigation by Director Bigelow is largely due, stated yesterday that he would ask for an immediate vote by the people on the bond issue question and that the hump project be left out. This is the view taken by Mayor W. B. Hays, who says that the two propositions should be separated or else filtration might suffer.

"There is no good reason why the hump proposition should be voted on at the same time as filtration is a much more vital matter. There is no necessity for the immediate removal of the hump. Let us have pure water first and we can have these other improvements later. I will ask that a vote be taken on another bond issue for filtration just as soon as the estimates are fixed. It will not take very long, for Director Bigelow's estimates must be in councils at the first meeting, and the finance committee can soon thereafter decide what to do with them. I have not the slightest doubt that a bond issue will be required, and I am satisfied that Director Bigelow's figures will be high enough.

Director Bigelow's estimates are expected to be in the hands of councils by September 14. Then no doubt they will be referred to the finance committee, as they belong there and because the ordinance for the filtration bond issue is already in that committee. It is expected that the finance committee can decide what to do within a couple of weeks and that the entire matter can be passed by councils before the end of September, unless the mechanical filter advocates resort to methods of obstruction.

Informations Will Be Made.

Albert Haven and William Howard, a negro, who were arrested by Detectives Cole, Seifert and Leff on a charge of attempting to break open a safe in West Liberty on Saturday afternoon, were held over yesterday until information can be made against them.

PETROLEUM NOT EXHAUSTED YET

Production in 1902 Greater Than That of Any Previous Year.

AVERAGE PRICE IS LOWER

F. H. Oliphant, Who Has Made Special Investigations for the Government Presents the Result—West Virginia Production Shows a Falling Off.

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU,
Room 15, Postal Building,
WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 30.

Figures on the production of petroleum have been given to the geological survey by F. H. Oliphant, who made special investigations for the government. The important points noted in Mr. Oliphant's report are:

Production was greater than that of any previous year, there was a slight decrease of production in the Appalachian field and a slight increase in the Lima-Indiana field; the general average price for crude petroleum was less than in any year since 1896; stocks held in the Appalachian and Lima-Indiana fields showed a considerable decrease, principally in the Appalachian field; the exports of petroleum in 1902 were less than in 1901; no new pools were discovered in 1902.

The total production in 1902 was 80,804,500 barrels, as against 69,368,161 barrels in 1901, an increase of 11,436,339 barrels, or 16.5 per cent over that of 1901, and 27 per cent over that of 1900. The greatest portion of the increase in 1902 came from Texas and California, the gain being 7,000,004 barrels, or 1227 per cent for Texas, and 8,175,918 barrels, or 50 per cent, for California. The largest decrease in production in 1902, as compared with 1901, was in West Virginia, where it amounted to 645,781 barrels, or about 4.5 per cent; and Ohio showed a decrease of 636,502 barrels or 4 per cent.

The value of petroleum produced in 1902 was $88,810,384, or 85 cents per barrel, that for 1901 having been $66,417,035, or 92.7 cents per barrel, a decrease of 7.7 cents per barrel, or 10 per cent, in 1902. The average price paid for what is known as Pennsylvania petroleum, which comprises nearly 50 per cent of the production of the Appalachian field, was $1.22.75 per barrel in 1902, that for 1901 having been $1.21, a gain of nearly 3 cents per barrel.

DEMANDED LIQUOR AT POINT OF PISTOL

John Frankville was arrested at 8 o'clock last night at the residence of Mrs. Sophie Phillips, North and Water streets, McKeesport, charged with carrying concealed weapons and disorderly conduct. Accompanied by an unknown Italian, Frankville entered Mrs. Hills' place, and because she refused to furnish him liquor drew a revolver and attempted to shoot her. Fortunately for Mrs. Cohut was passing and heard the woman's cries for help. He rushed in and knocked the revolver from Frankville's hands and arrested him. The Italian escaped, dropping a large knife in the front hall in his hurry.

DESERTED SHIP DRIVEN ASHORE

CAUGHT IN RECENT STORM

Standard Oil Tank Steamer Strands at Bay Head, but No Crew Is Found Aboard—Eight Men Rescued by Tug and Taken to New York.

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU,
Young's Ocean Pier,
ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 30.

There were two wrecks during the northeast storm which has been raging along the coast. The maritime agent here received word this morning that a Standard Oil Company tank steamer, No. 91, has come ashore at Bay Head without a soul on board. Where the crew was the life savers who went out to her could not tell.

This theory is that the crew, thinking that the ship was sinking, had left her in small boats and had either been picked up by a passing vessel or perished.

The second wreck was reported from the life saving station at Monmouth Beach. As daylight dawned the life saving crew discerned a wreck at sea and attempted to put out to it. The sea was too rough for their boat to live and the ship was too far away for a line to be shot over its deck. For hours the ship drifted onto the beach deserted. The same was made out as "Henry P. Mason of Bath, Me." About this time the crew of eight men were discovered in a yawl, clinging to one of the pound nets of the Asbury Park fishery, a mile at sea. While the life savers were making a heroic attempt to reach them a wrecking tug hove in sight and took the men aboard and steamed away to New York.

It is thought that there has been another wreck off this city this morning. Part of a yawl with no name attached came ashore and lodged against the piling of Young's pier. There is no way by which it could be identified. During the day southern pine was washed ashore. There is probably three or four thousand feet of it scattered along the beach. It is supposed that a lumber-laden vessel was caught in the slow last night and was either dismantled or that to save the vessel the crew threw the deck load overboard.

HUNDRED MILLION GAIN REALIZED

WORK IS ABOUT FINISHED

Completing Figures on Downtown Section—General Advance of 50 Per Cent. Widening Brings Up Values in Diamond and Virgin Alleys.

Within a week the board of city assessors will have completed the assessments for the next three years of downtown property. The assessors have finished the assessment of the ground properties in the downtown section and are ready to fix finally the valuations of the buildings. When this is ended the bulk of the work of the triennial assessment for 1904 will have been completed. The estimate at the end of last week verified the predictions first published at the beginning of the year in The Gazette, that the total valuations of the city will be increased about $100,000,000.

The average increase in the First, Second, Third, Fourth, Fifth and Sixth wards, which comprise the downtown section, is not less than 50 per cent. While the bump of values of downtown properties in the last three years has been remarkable, the assessors have aimed to arrive at a figure approximating 50 per cent, the fluctuations of the real estate market.

This has entailed an enormous amount of labor, and not in many years have the assessors been so hard on a triennial assessment. The figures have been pulled to get the fixed prices of value on all the downtown streets in order to fix a standard that would fit present values of all property along these thoroughfares.

The widening of Diamond alley has greatly enhanced the valuations of its property, in addition to the increase that it shares in common with the whole downtown section.

The assessors have determined to raise the valuations along Virgin alley to fit the widening of that street, although the widening has not yet taken place. They figure that the widening will be made before the end of the present fiscal year and that the increased will not be in force until next year.

The assessors have found wonderful advances in values along Fifth avenue, Wood street, Liberty avenue, Sixth street and Penn avenue.

Through the East End wards there has also been an appreciable increase in values, and nearly all the property that has heretofore been classed as rural and agricultural has been assessed full this time. The assessors have finished all the assessments in the outlying wards, having worked over them prior to last, as it was the most important of all. As soon as the assessment is finished property owners will have an opportunity to present exceptions which will, in many instances, reduce the figures of the assessors. Many of their figures, however, have found that the increase will not fall far short of the 50 per cent mark.

GOOD SHOWING OF INTERNAL TRADE

Department of Commerce and Labor Publishes Some Important Figures.

SOME INTERESTING STATISTICS

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU.
Room 19, Postal Building.
WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 30.

Internal commerce conditions throughout the United States as reflected by the July report of the department of commerce and labor, through its bureau of statistics, are quite satisfactory. Receipts of live stock at five markets this year to the end of July amounted to 17,174,847 head. Last year, 17,232,004 head were reported to the corresponding date, and 18,380,888 head in 1901. In 1901 a total of 374,076 cars of stock arrived at the same five markets, 365,419 cars in 1902, and 341,892 cars in 1903. The total receipts of stock for this year were divided as follows: At Chicago, 8,877,847 head in 170,363 cars; at Kansas City, 4,956,387 head in 54,210 cars; at Omaha, 2,371,358 head in 43,225 cars; at St. Louis, 1,061,945 head in 37,773 cars; at St. Joseph, 1,773,290 head in 20,029 cars. July receipts of cattle at Chicago this year were the heaviest since 1892, with the single exception of those of July, 1901. The increase in natives as compared with range and Texan stocks was characteristic of July arrivals.

The state of the provision market, as indicated by stocks on hand at the five cities on July 31, is significant of lowering prices. On that date, in 1901, there were 207,801,848 pounds of cut meats reported on hand. In 1902 the corresponding reserve was 213,580,067 pounds, compared with 202,458,420 pounds in 1903.

Backwardness of the season is reflected in the figures of wheat receipts during July, the first month of the new crop year. At the four winter wheat markets of Kansas City, St. Louis, Toledo and Detroit, 11,344,103 bushels were received in July, 1901, as compared with 11,985,087 bushels in July, 1903.

Vessels on the Great Lakes between domestic ports to the end of July has exceeded the quantity of freight handled to that date in 1902 by 1,000,000 tons. In July, 1901, there were reported 7,004,-000 tons of freight, against 7,552,588 net tons in 1902 and 7,946,410 net tons in 1903. For the first seven months of the current year, 26,928,513 tons of coastwise traffic were reported, compared with 24,425,825 tons last year and 18,891,267 tons in the preceding year, in which navigation opened unusually late. The amount of registered tonnage arriving on the Great Lakes in coastwise trade for the season to July 31, 1902, was 85,089,876 tons, and 26,810,686 net tons in 1903. Registered tonnage by the way of Sault Ste. Marie canal in 1902, to the same date, totaled 15,033,729 tons, compared with 25,396 tons in 1903. This decrease is fully explained by the tendency in freight-carrying capacity of through steamers to increase at a more rapid rate than their registered tonnage.

Grain receipts at the North Atlantic seaboards to July 31, last year were 112,280 bushels, compared with 143,429,340 bushels this year.

Receipts at New York for seven months ending July, were 56,026,689 bushels in 1902, and 71,410,460 bushels in 1903; at Boston, 17,517,322 bushels in 1902, compared with 18,682,000 bushels in 1903; at Philadelphia, 19,193,804 bushels in 1902, contrasted with 22,061,022 bushels; at Baltimore, 29,008,583 bushels in 1902, and 30,057,912 bushels in 1903.

The Atlantic seaboard the coastwise and foreign flour exports for the first six months of the year credited New York with 5,341 tons shipped to coastwise destinations; Philadelphia, 2,748,854 tons; Baltimore, 802,224 tons; Newport News, 800,-000; Norfolk, 979,434 tons. The total shipments during June from these ports were 2,147,586 tons, and for six months, ending June, 14,741,967 tons. Receipts at Boston for seven months, ending July, 1902, were 2,490,027 tons, against 8,886,366 tons for the same period in 1903.

Monongahela river tonnage for seven months last year totaled 5,444,702 tons, and 6,085,420 tons in 1903. New York state canals, to July 31, carried 1,538,846 tons, compared with 1,538,628 tons last season, and 1,497,128 tons in the preceding season.

Anthracite coal shipments reached an aggregate of 37,262,447 tons in the past seven months, in contrast with 24,124,763 tons. Coal shipments having been practically suspended on account of the strike the summer of 1902.

COMES WITH HONORS.

New South Side School Principal Given Farewell Reception in Wheeling.

Prof. J. H. Hammond of Wheeling, who will come to Pittsburgh today to take charge of his new office as principal of the Morse school, in the Twenty-fifth ward, was tendered a farewell reception last night in the Thomson Methodist Episcopal church, Wheeling, where he was director of the choir. Prof. Hammond is one of the most popular musicians in the West Virginia metropolis and his leave-taking was signalized by a special song service in the church, which was crowded by friends of the music director.

Seven years ago Prof. Hammond organized a vested choir in the Wheeling congregation. In a short time he surrounded himself with a chorus of 40 volunteer singers, and by thorough training soon developed into the largest and finest choir in the state. It is probable that he will soon be actively engaged in musical affairs in his new home.

PEACE MAY END BLUE LAW FIGHT

MUCH SODA SOLD YESTERDAY

In Wilkinsburg the dove of peace is hovering between the warring factions in the blue law crusade. Both the members of the committee of 12, representing the churches, and the committee of five, which is working on behalf of the druggists, tacitly have signified their willingness to withdraw as gracefully as the situation will permit.

Two druggists sold soda water and cigars yesterday and did the largest business since the crusade began. The "temperance tanks" on important street corners were well patronized by that element of the thirsty population that was willing to be satisfied with ice water. The town was unusually quiet and the very atmosphere seemed to indicate that an era of good will was at hand.

"Let the newspapers quit printing anything about the crusade and everything will blow over nicely," was the appeal made by a friend of Sunday soda.

"Nothing has really been done and there seems to be little need of much vigorous agitation," remarked a member of the committee of 12, who three weeks ago declared that the campaign should be kept up until every shop and drug store in the borough closed its doors on the Sabbath.

Nevertheless the druggists were not to be caught napping. Their soda fountains were attended by strange employes who had been imported from the city and Canton, O. Justice J. J. Walker, before whom informations have been made during the last two months, was ill yesterday and no plans were divulged as to where 12 informations would be made. Private detectives seemed to have little to do.

Petitions for the annexation of the borough to the city have been placed in circulation. These have been given to shop keepers and business men, and many signers are appearing. Sentiment is divided on the question of joining the Greater Pittsburgh procession and in case a strenuous fight is made to force this issue the blue law crusade will be forgotten. Dr. S. W. Cowell, one of the leading spirits in the annexation party, said:

"There is a strong sentiment in favor of joining the city. The people here want better fire protection and an efficient police force. Such are the borough authority ones not afford. The papers have been placed in circulation, and I understand, that a great number of signatures have been obtained. When 25 per cent of the qualified voters have affixed their names to the petitions, the committee will go into court and ask for special legislation from the city councils."

On the other hand, the anti-annexationists say that the petitions have been received with little enthusiasm and that a long fight will be necessary to secure enough signatures to get the papers into court. They say that an amicable between the factions in the blue law crusade would result in terminating all talk of the Greater Pittsburgh scheme.

(SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.)

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 30.—A big crowd journeyed to League park this afternoon expecting to see a double-header, as it had been unofficially announced that two games would be played by the Pittsburghs and Cardinals. The crowd was disappointed, as the management of the two clubs had decided to play only one game after a telegram to Secretary Muckfuss of the Cardinals to advertise the attraction had miscarried.

The fans were not bitter over the matter, however, for they were treated to one of the prettiest exhibitions of ball playing they have had an opportunity to witness this year. Doheny was in fine fettle for the Champs and with sterling speed, splendid control and a variety of curves that would bewilder a host of all star batsmen, he had little difficulty in shutting Donovan's men out without a run.

Miner Brown pitched a good game as well, but the Pirates bunched their hits in the sixth and seventh innings and sent three runs across the plate in those two periods, two in the sixth and one in the seventh. Nine hits were all the Pirates got off him and but for errors behind him in the seventh the score would have been 2 to 0 instead of 3 to 0. Doheny was touched up for but six hits, all singles.

For the first five innings neither side scored a run, although both teams got men on bases. The Cardinals found the Pirates infield practically impregnable. Ritchey, Wagner and Bransfield were playing in their best form and that means much. Ritchey especially made several phenomenal stops, which in ordinary games against ordinary fielders would have been singles and scored runs.

In the sixth inning Doheny's single, Beaumont's sacrifice, Clarke's triple and Wagner's double (the only triple and double of the game, by the way), scored two runs. Two singles and an error by Esokett at first base gave the Pirates their other run in the seventh. The score:

SURPRISED OPPOSITION.

Champions Take in American League Game After Beating the Cardinals.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 30.—The Pittsburgh team almost broke up the Cleveland-St. Louis game at American League park this afternoon. The incident occurred in this way: Arriving from the Smoky City at 2 p. m., the stars who have won two pennants for Pittsburgh and hope to land another rushed out to the National league grounds and treated the spectators there to a brilliant exhibition, which was given in considerably less than two hours' time. On the way to their hotel the Pirates had to pass the park in which the St. Louis and Cleveland American league clubs were playing a double-header, and Clarke's suggestion that they take in the show was acted upon promptly.

The bus was stopped on Grand avenue, and in full uniform the champions appeared in front of the center field bleachers, mingling with the overflow crowd there. A shout went up as soon as the National leaguers were recognized, and the Pirates were surrounded by fans, who ignored the game on the field to get their respects to the champions. It happened that Wallace, Anderson and other local players were having an off day, and from the crowd came many suggestions of trades.

"Let Wagner show you how to play short, Bobby," shouted one rooter. This made a hit. Other fans wanted Clarke to play left, and the other Pirates were asked to take the places of other unfortunate Browns. After the reception, which lasted several minutes, the Pirates climbed up on the score board platforms and remained until the game was over. They were given another ovation when they drove away at the finish. Manager Clarke announced tonight that he will use his Montana battery, Thompson and Carisch, in tomorrow's game. He says that Doheny never did any better twirling than in today's game.

Joss Just, an Italian, of No. 83 Washington street, was arrested in Highland park yesterday afternoon on a charge of assaulting Marguerite Sente, a 6-year-old child, whose home is in Shore's alley. Women heard the girl's screams in the park and notified Officer Noon, who arrested Just.

CHAMPIONS TO CHEER ALL THE GOOD PLAYS

It may not be the best exhibition of the national game, but it will be one that the participants will enjoy themselves. The game in question is the argument scheduled for this afternoon at Exposition park between the sporting writers of the Pittsburgh dailies and the employes of Exposition park. As an added feature, Official Scorer John Gruber will run Official Groundkeeper John Murphy 100 yards. Neither will carry weight for age. The opposition, that is, the park employes, have been practicing faithfully for some time and are expecting to slaughter the scribes.

The reporters will bat as follows: Gruber, third; Guy, pitcher; Chamney, catcher; Haile, second; Sears, short; McQuiston, first; Crotty, right; Long, middle; Davis, left. The Pittsburgh champions are interested in the game. Last night Secretary Locke wired the sporting editor of The Gazette the following:

"St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 30.

"The Pittsburgh team held a meeting on the train last night and instructed Manager Clarke to order 50 tickets for tomorrow's game at Exposition park between the sporting writer's team and the nine made up of employes of the Pittsburgh Athletic Company. Word was sent to the Pirates who were left at home to cheer every good play, but not to 'root for either team. 'We have friends on both sides,' was Manager Clarke's explanation.

REDS WILL HELP OUT THE PHILLIES

Beckley, Phillips and Bergen to Be Sent from Cincinnati to Philadelphia.

WILL CHANGE NEXT SPRING

(SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.)

CINCINNATI, Aug. 30.—The one big change planned to take place on the local team before the season of 1904 opens, will end the careers of Beckley, Bergen and Phillips as wearers of the red stockings of the Cincinnati club. This trio will in all probability be found with the Philadelphia National league club next season and will do much to give that team a formidable appearance, as yet the deal has not been closed, but it is contemplated, and there are good reasons for believing that it will be closed before the next season opens.

Every one of the three players mentioned is popular with the local fans. There is Bill Phillips, for instance. Bill has been the Reds' old reliable standby, on the pitcher's slab for six seasons. Until this year he has always been forced to the bulk of the work and always more games than he lost. This year he has not had an opportunity to do so much work, but he has pitched good ball, nevertheless.

As for Bergen, he has ever been a favorite. This year his work has not been up to its former standard, and yet it has been good. But the club figures that in the new man, Foltz, who is believed to be a great hitter, comes up to expectations, Bergen can well be allowed to go to Philadelphia.

Last by by no means least, comes Jake Beckley, one of the landmarks of the game and one of the best-known players in the National league. A member of the Reds in 1897. He has been playing first base ever since and has not shown the slightest tendency to deteriorate. In fact, Beckley plays better ball today than he did several years ago. While official information of the subject has been gained, it is believed that Manager Kelley has made up his mind to play first himself next year. The old familiar cry of "Jake, take it," "catch the throw and "Everybody there" cry, will be missed.

"Lefty" Jackson Gets His Game.

ALLIANCE, O., Aug. 30.—(Special.)—The Warren team, accompanied by 100 Eagles, came here today and were defeated by Alliance. Score:

	R.	H.	E.
Warren	0	0	1

TWO SISTERS ARE HELD ON CHARGE OF MURDER

(SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.)

MONONGAHELA, PA., Aug. 30.—Circumstances surrounding the death of Mrs. Hugh McLaughlin at Riverview, one mile from here, last night, created intense excitement. Information was made before Alderman Bryant by Robert Murphy, brother of the dead woman, charging Mrs. George Schockley and her sister, Miss Lillian Smith, 18 years old, with murder. The McLaughlin and Shockley homes are close together. According to evidence obtained by Coroner Sipe this afternoon a long drawn-out feud has existed between the two families.

Tonight Miss Smith was passing on her way to a store when Mrs. McLaughlin, who weighed nearly 200 pounds, ran out of her gate, seized the Smith girl and struck her. The girl struck back, at the same time screaming for help. Mrs. Shockley heard the screams and ran to her sister's assistance. After the Smith girl freed herself from Mrs. McLaughlin's grasp, the latter is said to have thrown stones at the fleeing girls.

Hugh McLaughlin came to his home soon afterward and found his wife suffering on the porch. "I'm done for, Hugh," she said. The husband carried her into the house, where she died in less than an hour. Coroner Sipe found no marks upon the dead woman's body that supported the theory of murder. Doctor Gillie, the McLaughlin family physician, testified to the coroner that he had treated Mrs. McLaughlin for years for heart trouble. The husband exonerated Mrs. Shockley and Miss Smith from blame and then the dead woman's brother, Robert Murphy, expressed a willingness to withdraw his murder charge.

A preliminary hearing will be held, however, on Monday evening, pending which the two sisters have been released on bail.

Say He Sang Vulgar Songs.

Charles Dunnan, aged 18 years, of No. 1321 Franklin street, Allegheny, was arrested in West park by Policeman John Kerr last night. He and other young men, it is said, were singing vulgar songs and insulting girls and women. The others escaped.

MANY INTERESTING ARTICLES BRIGHTENED THE SUNDAY GAZETTE

Fifty pages of bright, newsy and spicy reading matter, illustrated with 200 excellent half-tone engravings and four magnificent color sheets, yesterday constituted the treat given its readers by The Sunday Gazette. Beside giving all the news from all parts of the world, rich in exclusive items by cable, by telegraph and in the local field, The Sunday Gazette, as usual, excelled in the number of its special articles.

The opening of the theatrical season was signalized by a whole page of interesting matter pertaining to the local stage. The story of the approaching Labor Day demonstration was told, with portraits of many of the prominent leaders who will take part in the celebration. The extent of Pittsburgh's display at the St. Louis World's Fair was outlined, with pictures of prominent local exhibitors. A page was devoted to scenes at the Pittsburgh house market, and the history of the old Sixth ward, "the mother of politicians," was recounted in entertaining style.

A reporter's account of a trip with Evangelist A. H. Kaylor in a campaign against Allegheny sluners was a striking feature, and was illustrated by flashlight photographs taken in the streets while the crowds were listening to the sermons. The Sunday Gazette is the first Pittsburgh newspaper to successfully employ outdoor flashlights in depicting scenes of city life after dark.

The magazine section contained a wealth of interesting fiction, together with the following up-to-date articles of general interest: Facts About the Government Clerk; by L. W. Strayer, describing the life of the great army of Uncle Sam's employes in Washington; Chinese Cooks and Their Cooking; Why George Gould Does Not Take a Vacation; Kate Thyson Marr's essay on divorce, and a new series of fables by Dorothy Dix. An entire section was devoted to the news of the summer resorts and the various news departments were handled on the same liberal scale.

PERSONALS

H. M. Wilson of Connellsville, who spent yesterday in Pittsburgh, said that the coke regions are being interlaced with street car lines, and within a few weeks it will be possible to go anywhere in that district on electric lines. Speaking of the region, he said, "I was born in Dunbar 41 years ago and have watched the development of its industries for many years. I never expected to see so many large and thrifty towns as there are at present. It is surprising the amount of coal taken from the regions yearly, and yet the fields appear no thinner than they ever were. There are, thousands of acres that have not had a pick struck into them."

S. T. Williams of Baltimore passed through the city last night over the Baltimore & Ohio on his way to Chicago on business. He said that business at Baltimore is practically at a standstill.

HAMBURG BELLE HURT.

Futurity Winner Kicked Before Race by the Minuteman.

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—(Special.)—Hamburg Belle paid dearly for her victory in the Futurity stakes at Sheepshead Bay on Saturday. While in the paddock on that day Hamburg Belle was kicked by The Minuteman.

Her jockey, Fuller, told A. J. Joyner, her trainer, that he felt her falter in the closing of the contest, but that, not knowing the reason, he did not let up. Joyner, who owns the mare, is of the opinion that the filly entered twice in the race—once to the outside and again to the inside. In her stable at this time is Hamburg Belle, today's 15-1 favorite, and it will be her first appearance on the track since the accident happened. Joyner says that she may not be able to run again during the current meeting.

DEAL TO CAPTAIN HARTFORD FIVE AT TOP NOTCH SALARY

HARRISBURG, August 30.—(Special.)—John Deal, the crack first baseman of the Harrisburg athletic club, has signed a contract to captain and play next fall and winter with the Hartford basket ball team of the Connecticut state league, for which he is to receive $25 a week and expenses, the largest salary ever paid a basketball player.

For the salary Deal plays two games a week, each game averaging about an hour's time, which makes his earnings $12.50 per hour of actual playing. Some of the players whom he has signed on the Hartford team are Kalbaugh, Thomas, Keenan and Furst of last year's Camden team, and Hough, Flaat and Bellinger of the Burlington team.

Six years ago, when a youngster, he used to carry the chairs for the Germantown Y. M. C. A. management when they had games in the gymnasium. He has been in the national league for five years and has stood at the head for the past three years. He has made 2,750 points during his league career and last year made the record by making 694 points in forty-two games.

The Beaver A. C. defeated the Riverside A. C. in a very interesting game at Island park yesterday, 10 to 2. Beaver took the lead from the start, and the opposing nine failed to overcome it. Hickey's batting was one of the features of the game, while Robinson pitched steady ball, the men on bases, while Lewis pitched better ball than the score indicates.

RETURN OF CONFIDENCE IS SLOW BUT CERTAIN

Slight Gain in Prices During Week's Trading Shows Absence of Liquidation of an Urgent Character.

[BY PRIVATE WIRE TO THE GAZETTE.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—The stock market last week was a most uninteresting affair from the point of view of the speculator, and its developments presented but little significance to that element. To bankers, investors generally and those who have the greatest interest of the stock security market at heart the dullness was welcomed. Speculation narrowed to within sensible limits, considering the condition of the money market, and the usual demands which are made upon it at this time of the year.

The range of prices through which the leading speculative railroad and industrial shares traveled in the six business days was very limited, and the net changes were unimportant. For all the outside or public business that was to be done the exchange could easily have transacted it within one half hour each day. The rest of the business originated among the professionals, who gradually became tired of buying and selling at practically the same prices.

The wide fluctuations of the previous week, when prices moved up with great haste, only to be followed with as substantial a reaction, were absent in the week closed on Saturday last. Nevertheless, a comparison of the stock quotation on Saturday last with those of the same day of the previous week disclosed the fact that slight gains were made throughout the list. The advances were by no means large, but they were suggestive of conservative confidence in the situation, and that urgent or pressing liquidation was not in evidence. The results of the week also showed that the stock market had recovered its equilibrium, and was marking time pending the important developments of nature in the western corn and wheat fields, a matter which will undoubtedly shape its future course.

While the crop uncertainty still exists there is nothing which would conduce more to the benefit and final solvation of the distressed condition of the money market than a continuance of the dullness which seized upon the stock market last week. Brokers are not making any demands for credits upon the banks on account of the lack of buying power from either speculative pools or corporations. Lenders will probably seek to use their funds, which are now held timidly in hand, seared by months of liquidation and consequent losses. As has been stated, the return of confidence is a matter of slow growth but it grows and thrives under proper cultivation. The general financial situation could be well compared with that stage of a patient who has passed through a severe attack of fever, which ran riot through his system and left it weak and debilitated. An quietude and rest, together with proper nourishment are necessary to insure a speedy and thorough recovery, so also does the condition of the stock market demand tender treatment. To make any exciting demands upon that weakened system would be the height of folly and would undoubtedly be followed by a relapse.

In the Oil Fields

Developments in the Lower Southwest fields were not very gratifying the past week in several sections from which great things were expected. With a single exception light wells and dusters ruled. The exception was the South Penn Oil Company's No. 4 on the G. W. Talkington farm, located on the east side of the Folsom district in Harrison county, W. Va. The first 24 hours after the pay was tapped the well placed very close to 500 barrels to its credit. For three days the well showed considerable strength, then began to weaken, and the gauge for the 24 hours ending Saturday morning showed a production of 245 barrels.

To the northeast of the Pine Grove extension, in Wetzel county, the greatest interest was centered during the week after it was learned that at least one test well would get the sand. In the latter part of June the South Penn Oil Company drilled in a test on the Thomas J. Showalter farm that produced 900 barrels the first 18 hours and was then shut in to await the erection of more tankage and pipe line connection. When it was opened up it produced 500 barrels a day and has since been shot three times and suspended liberally each time. Early in the past week it was given its last shot and the production increased to 1,000 barrels, thus rounding out the week with a daily production of only 250 barrels. The amount of oil this well had produced, probably 25,000 barrels, made the surrounding territory look very promising, and stockholders were very anxious to tap what is thought to be the richest find of the present year.

The first of some 15 or 20 wells started reached the sand last Saturday, and at 19 feet in the Gordon had not found the pay and was looking like a total failure. This is a painfully black eye for the territory and will cause a suspension of operations in that direction from the Showalter gusher.

When it is stated that the E. H. Jennings & Bros. test on the Millie Morris farm is located only 600 or 800 feet away from the big producer it will be understood that its coming in dry was wholly unexpected. The single duster does not necessarily condemn all of the surrounding territory, but it gives the impression that it is spotted, and the producing territory must extend in some other direction than that named. For some of the leases secured after the Showalter came in the holders paid large bonus money. It is said that one company paid $20,000 bonus for less than 50 acres.

On the west side of the extension in the vicinity of the South Penn Oil Company's producer on the Lida Lemasters farm there is almost as much interest centered in the work now approaching completion. Should this extension prove a failure the source of new production to supplant the decline in the old fields will have narrowed down to the least point in many years. Never since the industry began has there been such a scarcity of territory capable of supplying high-grade crude. None of the large companies have any territory in sight that has not been drilled.

In the shallow sand districts there is more wildcatting at this time than in any other part of the lower southwest. Ritchie county is still foremost with work of an experimental nature. On the North Fork of Hughes river, where a good salt sand producer was drilled in a few weeks ago, there is considerable new work starting. Around the Whiskey Run extension there is also considerable test work under way and starting.

From Ripley comes the report that production could be greatly increased. The truth of the matter is that for more than a month the pipe line nuz been taking care of utterly all of the production with its local lines which had been extended into the various developments. The oil has been run from the wells to the Cumberland Pipe Line Company's big storage tanks and the market prices paid for the product. For the past three months there has been scarcely any increase in production, and August does not promise to be an exception.

The total runs for the first 27 days of the current month amounted to a little less than 30,000 barrels, about an average of 1,100 barrels a day. Only a portion of the aggregate can be used as substitute for the Pennsylvania grades. Kentucky and Tennessee will have to improve very much over their present form if they can come up to what has been claimed for them by the boomers.

Operators on the Ohio side are very active in developing Ze-bold and searching for new pools. An experimental work the Highland district in Washington county is in the last in Monroe county, in the Clear Fork district, which is about the usual amount of work in this way. This territory has some special advantages. There are four producing formations, and paying wells have been found in each in different parts of the district. Around there is a little experimental work starting on the strength of a few 5-barrel producers that have been found in that locality. Thus far the development work has not been very encouraging.

South of Burgettstown, Washington county, is the only development in the local fields that shows any activity. A few good producers have been found in this district. In the old brush creek district, in Allegheny county, there has been several good wells completed recently, but they have not yet been the incentive for starting much new work.

River Notes.

At 9 o'clock last evening the stage at Devis Island dam, as shown by the marks on the gauge, was 6.8 feet, and the river was stationary.

The Coal City was reported at Marietta last night. There were 11 feet of water and the boat was making good time.

The steamer Twilight left yesterday with a tow of 12 flats for East Liverpool. She reached there in safety last night.

The excursion steamers Mayflower and Francis J. Torrance had big crowds yesterday and much rivalry was shown. The day was ideal and the boats were able to make a trip down the Ohio. Good music was kept going on both boats.

The excursion of the pilots, which was scheduled to take place Wednesday of this week, may have to be postponed. Some of the committee left as pilots with the coal fleet, and there was no time to hold a meeting and formally declare the venture off. Those who did not go on the boats wish to have the excursion take place just the same. The matter will be decided today.

RACE NOT LIKELY.

Wind Too Strong and Sea Running Too High for Yacht Contest.

SANDY HOOK, N. J., Aug. 30.—The weather conditions tonight render it highly improbable that the Reliance and Shamrock will meet tomorrow. The northeast wind which continued all day abated but slightly toward evening and at sunset was blowing 22 miles an hour, the rain coming in blinding drifts and the sea running high.

Capt. Charles Barr of the Reliance was ashore late in the afternoon and said that the probability was greatly against a race, as even if the wind abated the sea would be so high that the boats would not dare attempt it.

WEEKLY REVIEW OF MARKET PRICES

Millfeed Quotations Very Firm. Flour Goes Lower—Cereals Score an Advance.

Slightly easier quotations for hay and straw were in effect early last week, although the market for No. 1 timothy hardly warranted any decline, as there is but little of that grade arriving, and prices very simply represent the premium of large arrivals of lower grades, of which there have been coming in freely and has had to bend work to keep the range of prices maintained. Straw was not to heavy supply, but demand was just enough to keep production of the same from being more. Corn has remained steady all week, and quotations are the same as those which ruled last Monday. Corn is also unchanged and firm. Millfeed has gained much in strength owing to the limited arrivals, and prices are higher.

In the grocery situation flour has attracted the most attention, as, though wheat is high, and corn is not, flour is lower. There has been a weakening in the market owing to the reduced demand. Local jobbers have been making concessions all week, which resulted on Saturday in a decline of 50 a barrel for spring patent. Cereals continue in good demand, oatmeal and rolled oats while some special lines are also higher. Sugar is steady. Rices are higher, and there would have been an advance in syrups and molasses, but that refiners have found demand lighter than expected. Coffee is quiet; there is a claim made that prices must go higher, but this seems to be based more on the fact that they are so very low now rather than because there is any material indication of an advance. Navy beans are unchanged, with the market perhaps a little firmer. Canned corn advanced be a dozen, but tomatoes the week and are not mass gains. Jobbers have about given up trying to understand the tomato situation and are doing things as they come, finding that the market does not respond to apparent conditions. Packers talk cheerfully of the future, but stock always seems to be had from some source.

Irish potatoes are unchanged, while sweets are slightly lower. Generally produce has gone down, refreshing having made cradle in eggs and cauliflower only. Elgs plant is abundant and very cheap. Corn is just about steady, while string beans have gone to the lowest point of the season. Tomatoes, after having been lower, tended to about this same level as a week ago. Peaches are scarce, and good stock maintains its prices. Grapes are in limited supply and higher. Watermelons are plentiful, and prices are firm. Cantaloupes are very scarce. Stockyards have consolidated to 40 per and are now the leaders in the cantaloupe market. Plums are a drug in the market, and prices are almost anything buyers choose to pay.

Butter advanced a quarter of a cent last Monday, since which time the market has been easy. Cheese is unchanged, but easier. Eggs have been very firm all week. Poultry closed the week as it opened, at quotations lower than ruled prior to last Monday.

FAST FALL IN THE RIVERS.

Another Rise Expected—More Coal to Go Out—One Accident.

One of the fastest falls on the waters of the local rivers within the recollection of riverboat sockpot between Saturday evening and yesterday morning. Eleven inches was recorded, according to the chart the rivers had fallen there four and seven feet for the one, two and three days following were registered on all sides. But up to late hour last night the steamers were keeping about the same level as it is thought that they will be able to reach Cincinnati in safety. A rise of several feet is expected at Warren, and it will prevent the Allegheny from falling much more than a foot. The Monongahela river will have a two-foot fall, say engineers, and a few of those feet is looked for before daylight.

This will make another rough stage to the local harbor and it is expected that the fleets will not be the Monongahela River Consolidated Coal & Coke Company. They will go to the Cypher with 17 barges and the Volunteer with 14 barges. There will both 400,000 bushels of coal. It is said to be over 50 for the company and other consignees.

The only accident so far in the coal fleet was that of the steamer T. J. Wood, which left Pittsburgh for Ill.on Saturday night, and she was late in getting out, and the Cumberland river reached her. The run for the approach at Rochester, near Harrod's dam. All the new except two, three were pulled off yesterday, but they will be brought up today by the tugs.

The wheelboats, the steamer L. C. Woodward of the Pittsburgh & Morgantown packet line and the steamer Home Forest, were all aground on the Ohio yesterday. The former's keepers terminate wrecked by being thrown against each other. Several feet boxes and other craft were left aground by the rapid fall of the rivers. Little damage is reported in result.

Low Excursion to Atlantic City, September 2d, Via Baltimore & Ohio Railroad.

Tickets good 10 days. Fare, $10 round trip; $2 additional for tickets good to go or for sleeping cars, in connection with regular Pullman tickets. Special train leaves Pittsburgh 8 A. BY TROLLEY TO INDIANAPOLIS

Trip of 436 Miles Will Be Possible When a Line to Wheeling Is Completed.

MUCH OF DISTANCE COVERED

Connections Could Be Carried in All Directions—Last Gap Between Columbus and Indiana Metropolis Finished. Electric Versus Steam Roads.

A continuous trolley ride from Pittsburgh to Indianapolis, a distance of 436 miles, will be possible, if out of the many mythical projects for an electric road from this city to Wheeling one of them becomes a thing of reality. Arrangements have been made by several Ohio, West Virginia and Indiana electric railways whereby a trolley car may be run from Bellaire to Indianapolis, a distance of 364 miles, and if a line is built between Wheeling and the Smoky City the Pittsburgh Railways Company will then form the hub of a vast electric system extending in all directions from Pittsburgh. The plan is considered feasible, even where the electric companies come in sharp competition with the steam roads.

One of the longest continuous lines of electric railways thus far running in the same direction is that formed by the half dozen companies operating from Indianapolis eastwardly, via Richmond, Dayton, Springfield and Columbus to Newark, O., a distance of 226 miles. Another line, now under construction, will extend from Newark to Zanesville, about 26 miles, where there will be a connection with the Ohio River & Western, which is the successor to the old Bellaire, Zanesville & Cincinnati road. This is being converted into an electric line for passenger service although steam engines will be used for freight. The road is in operation from Zanesville to Bellaire, 112 miles, making the total distance from Indianapolis to Bellaire 364 miles. An electric line is now in operation from Bellaire to Wheeling.

From Indianapolis, as well as Pittsburgh, the connections can be carried in all directions, affording an indefinite area. The connection of Indiana and Ohio by the completion of the last gap between Columbus and Indianapolis was celebrated a few days ago. Five companies compose this route. Three other companies, the Columbus, Buckeye Lake & Newark, Newark & Zanesville and Ohio River & Western, will afford connection from Columbus to Bellaire, and the Wheeling Traction Company will complete the link to Wheeling.

Many of these lines now in operation parallel steam railroads, showing that they do not fear the old established competition. This is particularly the case between Columbus and Indianapolis, where the Panhandle is paralleled for many miles. In speaking of electric line competition an official of that road said yesterday:

"We expect a decrease in local passenger receipts—that is, in short haul business. The electric lines offer low rates and catch many passengers that otherwise the steam railroads would get. But if they intend going into long haul passenger business they will have to construct expensive terminals, and I believe this will not pay. They can make little money by an exclusively passenger business and of course they are not equipped for freight."

CARRIE ROASTED, TOOK OCCASION TO ROAST

Jumped on McTighe and Vitchestain—Yesterday at the Trolley Parks.

Carrie Nation was at Calhoun park yesterday and took occasion to assail Superintendent of Police John P. McTighe and Magistrate Joseph Vitchestain, who were responsible for her arrest and fine for selling hatchets in the Union station last week. She also turned her attention to the Pennsylvania railroad officials. Then she gave a lecture on temperance. The crowds at the parks were not so large as was anticipated owing to the bad weather.

In addition to Mrs. Nation at Calhoun park yesterday the Homestead Library band gave two fine concerts. Director Edwin B. Dolin played a euphonium solo that was generously applauded. A descriptive piece, entitled "Noah's Ark," was true to its title, as it included imitations of the different animals on a ramp page. Miss Mamie Goodrich sang several songs, Crouch and Richards, musical novelty artists, gave good exhibitions.

At Kennywood Rocereto's band and augmented orchestra gave two concerts and assisting them were Svengall, the yodler from Europe; Kattes Brothers, a team of marvelous negroes; Lonnie Follett, popular with Pittsburghers; Miss Alice Dumont, "coon songster; Clyde Schafer, the tenor; Charles McCue, the baritone and H. P. Blaney, the local singer. The Rocereto band, Svengall, Kattes Brothers, Clyde Schafer and Charles McCue will be retained all week, in addition to the steeplechase and other attractions.

The Pennsylvania State band gave both of yesterday's concerts at Oakwood park. Fred Nolan, the comedian, and the Tipps, colored entertainers, were the special features. H. Hery played a trombone solo very well. There were a number of popular airs on the programs and selections from the several musical comedies.

The Braddock Library band was at Southern park. Selections from "El Capitan," "The Telephone Girl," "The Mocking Bird," "The Singing Girl" and "The Serenade" were given. Herr C. Schaurling played a trombone solo and E. A. Becker a cornet selection. Dubec's animal actors, consisting of dogs, cats, apes and rats afforded good entertainment. Eddie Devoe furnished a lot of fun.

MORMONS IN THURINGIA.

Will Be Expelled from Saxe-Weimar If They Indulge in Polygamy.

BERLIN, Aug. 30.—(Special.)—Will Thuringia become a German Utah? Is the question which is often asked by the inhabitants of the little duchy of Saxe-Weimar, who have been anxiously watching the influx and growing influence of Mormons in Apolda. Apolda is a city situated at the junction of the Shotten and Heresses rivers in Saxe-Weimar, which during the last few years has grown from a small hamlet to a city of more than 20,000 inhabitants.

The rapid increase is largely due to Mormons, who have been driven out of Prussia and have settled in the small state, where they may hope in a comparatively short time to make the laws of the country. It is said that even now they practice polygamy, and it is feared that they have become too influential and deeply rooted to be expelled without serious trouble.

The grand duke, however, is determined that if it can be proven legally that polygamous marriages are taking or have taken place, the whole sect will be immediately expelled, by force if necessary.

COUNTY FORCE WANTS PASSES

Annuals for Detectives Over Railroads Would Be Some Benefit to Community.

"BUCK" SANDERS IS INNOCENT

Detective Reed Says He Has Located Real Murderer of John Marhoff, but Must Wait for Transportation Before He Can Go for Him.

The newly formed county detective force is handicapped by the fact that when on any case outside the city, where it is necessary for a detective to reach a certain spot as soon as possible, the officer does not always have the necessary funds in his possession to pay transportation charges, and when compelled to go out and hunt a friend from whom he can borrow, or sit down and wait for more money or a pass to reach him from the head office, valuable time is often lost.

One of the county detectives suggests that the district attorney ought to secure annuals from the railroads for the use of the detectives, and in making this suggestion expressed the thought that it would probably be an easy thing to do, for according to a statement made by Thomas S. Bigelow, the railroads are very kind in supplying free transportation, especially when the same is requested by himself or some other big Citizens leader, while in the situation in Mayor Harse office seems to be that any Tom, Dick and Harry can get a railroad pass by simply going to the mayor's office and asking for it. By securing annuals for the county detectives the Citizens leaders might for once be of some use to the citizens of the county.

William J. Reed of the county detective force, yesterday expressed his firm conviction that "Buck" Sanders, a negro, who is in jail under sentence of death for murder, and who is to hang September 24, is not guilty of that murder. He says he knows who killed the man, Sanders was convicted of killing, and that he is going to arrest him as soon as he gets transportation, that is, if the real murderer does not take it into his head to move from where he is at present.

Sanders was convicted of killing John Marhoff, a Russian, in a saloon fight in Bridgeville, on June 16, 1902. He was arrested on July 2, of the same year, and convicted and sentenced to be hanged on February 28, this year. He was respited until April 23, and then until June 25, and finally until September 24. Sanders has always maintained his innocence and Detective Reed has been quietly investigating the case.

Now Reed has located the real murderer, he says, and yet he cannot arrest him because he has not transportation to reach the place where the man is now living. Reed's idea that the county detectives be given annual railroad passes is an excellent one, when it is considered that railroads hand out numerous passes to politicians for pleasure trips.

There are times when a detective must jump a train at a moment's notice. Sometimes criminals escape because a detective has to wait for transportation or else secure enough money for railroad fare.

SERMON ON FAITH AT CHAUTAUQUA

Eloquent Dr. Thoburn Discourses on Benefits Received Through It.

CITES THE CASE OF MOSES

We Must Allow This Element of Our Being Full Play or We Cannot Be Well Balanced—Dr. Gunsaulus Also Delivers an Address.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

CHAUTAUQUA, N. Y., Aug. 30.—Today closed the 30th annual Chautauqua assembly and the weather quite matched the spirit of the occasion, for it rained dismally all day long. But a large number of faithful Chautauquans braved the elements to be present to the very end.

The morning sermon was delivered by Dr. Frank H. Gunsaulus. He took for his theme the necessity of a single fixed purpose in life, to which everything else must bend, basing his remarks on Paul's words: "I must see Rome." Paul spoke these words at the time of the shipwreck on his journey to Rome, assuring the ship's company that they should all be saved. Dr. Gunsaulus continued:

"If you want good cheer, go to the man who is in deepest trouble. Are you in trouble? Find the man who has a deeper trouble than yours. There are troubles that sweep over the time and sense of the human soul, but whose waves reach the throne. Here was Paul, whose trouble was so much greater than theirs, that he could say, 'Be of good cheer, I must see Rome.' There is no other source of good cheer in this world of ours than in the heart of the deeply troubled."

The afternoon assembly was addressed by Dr. James M. Thoburn on the subject "Faith." He said: "Our faith in these days is more the faith that makes professions than inspires attention. It has come to pass that Christians almost refuse to take a step where they cannot see. Constituted and endowed as we are, we must allow this faith element of our being full play or we cannot be well balanced. The man who must have mathematical, historical proof for everything that he believes, is crippling and paralyzing some of its noblest powers.

"By faith Moses refused to be called the son of Pharoah's daughter and chose to be an Israelite. What did he refuse? Things he could see—honor, riches, a throne. What did he choose? That which seemed undesirable, but he based his decision on the vision of his faith and gained for himself a place in history and a name that is immortal."

The last vesper service in the present hall of philosophy was conducted tonight by Dr. Gunsaulus. The beginning of the second quarter century of the circle will see a new, more commodious and more convenient hall erected on the site of the present one. And the hopes of all Chautauquans are high, for Bishop Vincent is to be here throughout the season next year and the inspiration of his presence is incalculable.

PROSPERITY IN GERMANY.

Numerous Iron Works and Machine Shops Show Largely Increased Business.

BERLIN, Aug. 30.—(Special Cable.)—There is every indication that Germany is entering upon a new period of increased prosperity and that especially during the last three months conditions have improved in a most extraordinary manner.

From Silesia, Rhineland and Westphalia, where are located the largest machine shops, come reports of increased business and large orders for machinery to improve mines in all parts of the country. Almost all industrial stock companies have declared higher dividends. The numerous iron works in Rhenish Prussia have orders on hand to insure work for more than a year. For many years the number of business failures has not been as small as during the last three months. The banks of the country are in splendid condition and money is very plentiful.
